MAKING BAD

SPIKE LEE'S NEW DOC DELVES INTO THE CREATION OF MICHAEL JACKSON'S 1987 ALBUM PAGE 12

Back Then & Again...
Jewellery Boutique
Antique, Vintage, Retro Jewellery of all Eras!
YES! We do have CLIP-ONS!
115 - 3rd Avenue South
(Drinkle Mall on 3rd Ave. & 22nd St.)
Ph: 665.7568
Sample our collection on

SASKATOON metro®

Monday, September 17, 2012

News worth sharing.

metronews.ca | twitter.com/metrosaskatoon | facebook.com/metrosaskatoon

Riders outpaced by Als

Saskatchewan Roughriders quarterback Drew Willy throws a pass as the Montreal Alouettes' Mike Lockley moves in during second-half CFL action in Montreal on Sunday. The Roughriders lost 28-17. GRAHAM HUGHES/THE CANADIAN PRESS

Saskatchewan falls 28-17. Despite loss, coach Corey Chamblin likes most of what he saw from rookie quarterback Willy: 'He's a young guy and he'll grow'

Veteran Anthony Calvillo got the win against a rookie making his first CFL start, but the 40-year-old Montreal Alouettes quarterback wasn't crowing about it after the game.

The Alouettes took the lead in the first half and held on for a 28-17 win over Drew Willy and the Saskatchewan Roughriders on a flag-filled afternoon at Percival Molson Stadium on Sunday.

The Alouettes (7-4) moved into first place in the East Division, two points ahead of the Toronto Argonauts, who will visit Montreal next Sunday.

Calvillo threw a touchdown pass to Brian Bratton while Brandon Whitaker and backup quarterback Adrian McPherson ran for TDs as the Alouettes bounced back from their worst loss of the season, a 43-10 setback last week in Vancouver.

The 40-year-old Calvillo threw for 266 yards, but all but 30 yards came in the first half as Saskatchewan's stingy defence came together in the final 30 minutes. Montreal did not get a first down in the entire third quarter.

Willy made his debut as a starter after looking good in relief of the injured Darian Durant in consecutive wins over Winnipeg. The former University of Buffalo star threw some fluttery balls but completed 22 of 35 passes for 225 yards. However, after a TD toss to Kory Sheets, he had two picked off to kill drives in the fourth quarter.

"There were some throws I missed that I usually make that I'm not real happy about, but there were some good things and bad things," said Willy. "We could have won that game.

"We stalled on a few drives and it really hurt us. There were a couple there that I've just got to make." THE CANADIAN PRESS

Looking ahead

- Whether Willy starts again next Sunday when the Riders play host to Calgary depends on how quickly Durant recovers from a hip injury.
- "I feel pretty good," said Durant. "It's just precautionary, making sure I don't further mess anything up."

ASTIGMATISM?

LASIK corrects astigmatism more effectively than glasses or contact lenses.

LASIK MD VISION

LASIK starting at $490/eye*

FREE Consultation: 1-855-784-2020

lasikmd.com/astigmatism

* Prices are subject to change without prior notice and vary based on prescription strength. Applicable to surgery on both eyes only. Other conditions may apply.

ROGERS

REGINA

Teleco

864 Victoria Ave. E

(306) 352-6600

Teleco

Cornwall Centre

(306) 525-3854

Teleco

1501 Albert St.

(306) 525-5000

SASKATOON

AirSource

718 Circle Dr. E

(306) 955-2355

AirSource

2002 8th St. E

(306) 955-2357

AirSource

Centre at Circle and 8th

(306) 955-1955

AirSource

Midtown Plaza

(306) 955-5799

AirSource

Confederation Mall

(306) 955-4399

ROGERS plus

REGINA

North Gate Mall

(306) 949-5395

Southland Mall

(306) 949-5397

The place to go... to go superfast.

STUDENTS SAVE
UP TO $120
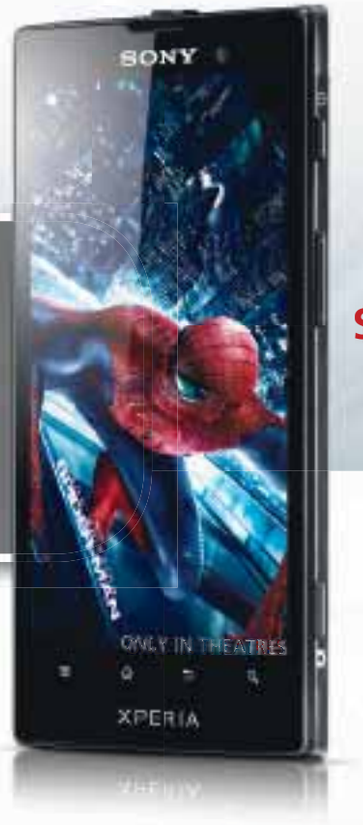
OVER 12 MONTHS WITH SELECT PLANS[1]

BONUS
UNLIMITED WIRELESS INTERNET
FOR 3 MONTHS



LTE beyond 4G

Sony Xperia™ ion with FLEXtab™
$29.99* with select 3-yr. FLEXtab agreements

THE LTE-READY SONY XPERIA™ ION

With HD Mobile BRAVIA® screen and 12 MP camera

Hurry into a Rogers store for a huge selection of LTE superphones.

Rogers LTE network available in select cities. See rogers.com/coverage

rogers.com/superphones

CONNECT EXCITING text TALK SHARE RELIABLE ADDICTED FREEDOM LIFE NETWORK CHAT
TALK FRIENDS SURF NETWORK LIFE TEXT FIRST FAST ACCESS FREEDOM LIFE
CHAT ACCESS FREEDOM EXCITING FRIENDS

Creating World-Leading Internet Experiences.

ROGERS™

ROGERS™ authorized dealer · ROGERS plus · SONY · FUTURE SHOP · BEST BUY · WIRELESS etc... · COSTCO WHOLESALE · «WIRELESSWAVE» · Walmart · THE MOBILE SHOP · LONDON DRUGS

Offers available for a limited time and subject to change without notice. Usage subject to Rogers Terms of Service and Acceptable Use Policy. *With new activation on any 3-yr. talk and internet plan having min. $48 monthly service fee. Device Savings Recovery Fee and/or Service Deactivation Fee (as applicable) apply in accordance with your service agreement. FLEXtab balance corresponds to the sum of Device Savings Recovery Fee and the Additional Device Savings Recovery Fee. A one-time Activation Fee of up to $35 (varies by province) may apply. 1 Available to new Rogers wireless student customers (valid student ID required) who activate a single-line plan between Aug. 9/12 and Nov. 6/12. Eligible students must register online at www.rogerspromotions.com/students prior to Dec. 6/12 for monthly $10 credit. Credit will be applied so long as eligible plan is maintained. TM & ©2012 Marvel Characters, Inc. ©2012 CPII. All Rights Reserved. ™Rogers & Mobius design used under license from Rogers Communications Inc. © 2012 Rogers Communications.

Saskatoon's Terry Fox Run still strong in 32nd year

An inspiration.
Organizers say run is a time of hope for survivors and supporters

MORGAN MODJESKI
morgan.modjeski@metronews.ca

Organizers of the Saskatoon Terry Fox Run say the event itself hasn't changed much since its beginnings 32 years ago, but noted the perception around cancer has changed drastically.

Sherri Sanche, chairperson and run co-ordinator for the Saskatoon Terry Fox Run, said that years ago when an individual was diagnosed with the disease, it was seen by most as a death sentence. But now there is more hope than ever for those who are diagnosed.

"When I first heard (about) the cancer, I thought it was a death label, anyone who has cancer is not getting out of it, but it's so different now," said Sanche.

"There are people that we lose within a month, but there are so many cancer survivors.

"It's all about hope and celebration," she added.

One of those survivors is Sarah Salewich, the children's area co-ordinator at the run. For her the event is important because she had the same type of cancer as Terry Fox, whom she has come to regard as a symbol of hope.

"I think of him, I think of what he set out to do and I think, If he can do it, I can do it," said Salewich.

"It may seem like the simplest statement, but it keeps me going and I think it keeps a lot of people going."

Quick facts

- Fox was diagnosed with osteogenic sarcoma in 1977, resulting in his right leg being amputated.
- Fox began his now famous Marathon of Hope in 1980 to bring attention to the lack of research funding.
- Due to health concerns Fox postponed his run near Thunder Bay, Ont.
- Fox died June 28, 1981, before completing his run. His story has brought worldwide attention to cancer fundraising and awareness.

Run co-ordinator and chairperson for Saskatoon's Terry Fox Run, Sherri Sanche, left, poses for a photo with Cancer survivor and children's area co-ordinator, Sarah Salewich at this year's event. MORGAN MODJESKI/METRO

Subbing sneakers for suits to raise money

Legal group WMCZ put their weight into a challenge. JANE CAULFIELD/METRO

With a grand total of nearly $24,000 raised for the Saskatoon Children's Hospital, the inaugural Saskatoon Corporate Challenge is being hailed a success.

"I have never had so many people excited about an event," said organizer Terri Sewell.

"When we were looking for businesses to participate, the response was amazing."

A total of 12 local businesses participated, with teams taking part in six challenges throughout the week. Challenges included a scavenger hunt, flag football and a truck pull.

"With a wide variety of challenges, there is something for everyone," said Sewell. "Everyone has been commenting about how participating in the events has been great for their own staff morale as well."

Citing over 150 participants in Edmonton's corporate challenge, Sewell said she is excited to see Saskatoon's challenge grow.

"I'm hoping that next year we can double the amount of participants."

JANE CAULFIELD/METRO

Final standings

1: Stantec
2: Cameco
3: AECOM
4: Worley Parsons, Clifton Associates, Northrim
5: MNP
6: Sasktel
7: SNC Lavalin
8: WMCZ
9: Saskatchewan Blue Cross
10: Century 21
11: The Marketing Den
12: Redhead Equipment

Assault

Two men in hospital after weekend attack

A 17-year-old man is facing two charges of aggravated assault and one charge of assault with a weapon after two men were injured in the early hours of Saturday morning.

Police were called to a disturbance in the 1800 Block of 20th Street West, where they found a 22-year-old man with several stab wounds and a 19-year-old with a head injury.

Both were taken to hospital, and the police said the most recent update they had on their status was that the 22-year-old was in stable condition while the 19-year old was still in critical condition.

Police believe more suspects were involved and an investigation is ongoing.

METRO

Broadway Ave.

Council's last chance to rezone

Potential rezoning for Broadway Avenue, one of Saskatoon's most iconic streets, could be passed at Monday's council meeting. The rezoning aims to recognize Broadway's historic commercial area and encourage mixed-use development, as well as to include an Architectural Control District. METRO

Highway 12

Three-car collision kills four people

Four people were killed and another three were injured in a collision this weekend on Highway 12, south of Blaine Lake.

Three vehicles, including a family minivan, were involved in the crash on Saturday afternoon.

Highway traffic was restricted to one lane for the remainder of the afternoon as RCMP traffic analysts examined the scene.

The three injured in the crash were taken to a Saskatoon hospital with non-life-threatening injuries. RCMP released the identities of the deceased on Sunday: Curtis Lafond, 45, from the Mont Nebo area; Brittany Omani, 19, from Muskeg Lake Cree Nation; Lillian Arcand, 81, from Muskeg Lake Cree Nation; and Amy Arcand, 21, from Mistawasis First Nation.

METRO

1 NEWS

Mobile news

Qriket

When mama bear's away, the cubs'll play. Scan the code to watch the hijinks three cubs get themselves into after they invade a backyard park.

Terry Fox run a time of hope for the city

Organizers say Fox's message and goal still resonate strongly with survivors, patients and their families in Saskatoon

MORGAN MODJESKI
morgan.modjeski@metronews.ca

1 Start. And they're off!

Participants of this year's Terry Fox run take off from the starting line near the Vimy Memorial Bandshell in Kiwanis Park. Roughly 500 participants were expected to take part.

2 Four-legged runner. Humans not the only one to support Cancer funding

Ten-year-old Loki is no stranger to the Terry Fox run: His owner says he's been to a few of the fund-raising events in the past.

3 R&R. The aftermath

Tony Wood, 17, lies on the grass to relax after sprinting over the finish line.

4 Getting set. Stretch it out

Participants prepare for the run during a group warmup and stretch.

5 Carrying on. Symbolic start

A Cancer survivor, so designated by a red Terry's Team shirt, cuts a ribbon in front of the Vimy Memorial Bandshell, signifying the start of the race.

6 Along the river. Not quite single file

Participants at this year's event walk down Spadina Crescent along the South Saskatchewan River.

Pakistani protesters march on U.S. Consulate over film

Anti-Islam. Leader of Hezbollah calls for protests against movie that denigrates Prophet Muhammad

Hundreds of Pakistanis protesting an anti-Islam film broke through a barricade near the U.S. Consulate in the southern city of Karachi on Sunday, sparking clashes with police in which one demonstrator was killed and more than a dozen injured.

In a move that could escalate tensions around the Arab world, the leader of the Hezbollah militant group called for protests against the movie, saying protesters should not only "express our anger" at U.S. embassies but urge leaders to act.

The film, which denigrates Islam's Prophet Muhammad, has sparked violent protests in many Muslim countries in recent days, including one in Libya in which the U.S. ambassador was killed. The U.S. has responded by deploying additional military forces to increase security in certain hot spots.

In a televised speech, Hezbollah leader Sheik Hassan Nasrallah said the U.S. must be held accountable for the film, which was produced in the United States. The U.S. government has condemned the film. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

YouTube

- Google is refusing a White House request to take down an anti-Muslim clip on YouTube, but is restricting access to it in certain countries.
- The White House said Friday that it had asked YouTube to review whether the video violated its terms of use. Google owns YouTube, the online video-sharing site.

Supporters of Islamic political movement Hizb ut-Tahrir protest outside the U.S. Embassy in London against the U.S.-made anti-Muslim film mocking the Prophet Muhammad on Sunday. SANG TAN/THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Security concerns

Canadian embassies close for day

Canada closed three of its Middle East embassies for the day Sunday because of continued security concerns.

A spokesman for Foreign Affairs Minister John Baird says the missions in Egypt, Libya and Sudan will not be open to ensure the safety of diplomatic staff.

The U.S. State Department ordered the departure of all family members and non-essential personnel on Saturday from posts in Sudan and Tunisia.

It blames the security situation in the capitals of Tunis and Khartoum. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Flying Magnotta back to Canada a $375K job

The cost to Canadian taxpayers for Luka Rocco Magnotta's extradition from Germany, aboard a government plane fit for the prime minister, is expected to be about $375,000.

The estimated price tag for the accused killer's unusual journey home includes flight expenses, catering service and a hotel stay for authorities who fetched the fugitive from across the Atlantic, according to federal documents obtained by The Canadian Press.

Berlin police arrested Magnotta in June to end an international manhunt following the killing of Chinese national Jun Lin.

Magnotta is facing several charges in connection with the gruesome slaying, including first-degree murder. The 30-year-old porn actor and stripper has pleaded not guilty to all counts.

Magnotta flew home aboard one of the military's CC-150 Polaris Airbus transport planes, an aircraft that can be configured to accommodate prominent passengers such as the prime minister, foreign dignitaries, the Governor General and members of the Royal Family.

The flights, from an Alberta military base to Germany and back to Canada, spanned 23.9 hours at an estimated rate of $15,505 per hour — for a total cost of $370,570.

The rate is an estimate that includes maintenance, hangar fees, crew salaries and fuel, which makes up $6,420 of the hourly cost, according to the Department of National Defence.

The hotel cost for eight crew members to stay overnight in Berlin was expected to come to nearly $1,300, while the catering total was approximately $3,500.

At the time, a police official told media that commercial airlines had declined requests to transport Magnotta across the Atlantic.

Montreal police were thankful the federal government made the plane available for the extradition.

"How can we bring him back to Montreal on a commercial flight with other people sitting on board?" Cmdr. Ian Lafreniere said, shortly after Magnotta emerged from the plane. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Luka Rocco Magnotta is taken by police from a Canadian military plane in Mirabel, Que., on June 18. THE CANADIAN PRESS FILE

Protests erupt across China over islands

Anti-Japanese protesters are confronted by police as they demonstrate over the disputed Diaoyu Islands on Sunday in Shenzhen, China. Protests have taken place across China in a dispute that is becoming increasingly worrying for regional stability. LAM YIK FEI/GETTY IMAGES

Sex scandal

Woman to lead U.S. military unit

The U.S. Air Force has chosen a woman to lead its basic training unit where dozens of female recruits have alleged they were sexually assaulted or harassed by male instructors in the past year. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

10 soldiers dead

Sudanese army sinks own boat

An official says the South Sudanese military sank a boat carrying 170 of its own soldiers on the Nile river, killing at least 10, after mistaking them for enemy forces. Fifty soldiers are still missing. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Namibia

Babies being flushed: Report

The Namibia Press Agency reports that some 40 babies and fetuses are dumped and flushed down toilets every month in Windhoek, Namibia's capital of just 350,000 people. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Politicians, voters bracing for bitter fall Parliament sitting

'Combat zone.'
New poll suggests tight race between Conservatives, Liberals and NDP

A quiet summer has given Prime Minister Stephen Harper's Conservatives some breathing room as they head Monday into what could be an acrimonious fall sitting of Parliament.

A new poll gives the governing party a seven-point lead over the Opposition New Democrats — a cushion they may need if a second omnibus budget-implementation bill sparks the same public backlash and all-out parliamentary warfare its predecessor did last spring.

The Canadian Press Harris-Decima survey put Conservative support at 34 per cent of respondents, the NDP at 27, the Liberals at 24 and the Greens at seven.

The results suggest Canadians may be slowly returning to "more traditional patterns of voting behaviour," said Harris-Decima chairman Allan Gregg.

Until now, New Democrats had been running neck and neck with — or even slightly ahead of — the ruling party, eating into core Conservative support among older, male and rural voters and core Liberal support among female and urban voters.

A relatively sleepy summer with little federal political controversy has likely helped settle voters back into a somewhat more traditional pattern. But Monday's resumption of Parliament could shake things up again.

"As we know, the House has become a combat zone and, absent that, things do settle down; there aren't those events that drive people's change in viewpoint as much," Gregg said.

Just how much of an enemy Parliament proves to be to Harper's Conservatives will revolve primarily around the second budget-implementation bill, which government House leader Peter Van Loan describes as the "cornerstone legislation" of a fall sitting focused on job creation and economic growth.

THE CANADIAN PRESS

Omnibus

The first omnibus budget bill was a massive grab-bag of measures, many that had little to do with the 2012 budget, including:

- A rewrite of environmental-protection legislation.
- An overhaul of employment insurance.
- Changes to employment-equity law.
- New rules for political advocacy by charities.

House of Commons maintenance workers Andre Dube, left, and Gilles Bourgon prepare the chamber for the return of Parliament. ADRIAN WYLD/THE CANADIAN PRESS

Ronald Smith is shown on Feb. 22 at Montana State Prison in Deer Lodge.
BILL GRAVELAND/THE CANADIAN PRESS

Lethal-injection battle could save Canadian inmate's life

A complex legislative process and a lack of political will could derail any plans to change the way Montana carries out its executions, but may be a ray of hope for a Canadian on death row.

This month's ruling by a judge who declared the state's method of execution "unconstitutional" could do something 30 years of legal wrangling and appeals have failed to do for Canadian Ronald Smith — prevent his execution for the 1982 murders of two young Montana men.

But it's not a simple matter.

The American Civil Liberties Union filed a civil lawsuit in 2008 on behalf of Smith that argued the lethal injections the state uses are cruel and unusual punishment and violate the right to human dignity.

District Court Judge Jeffrey Sherlock, in his Sept. 6 ruling, pointed to problems such as lack of training for individuals who administer the drug, and a discrepancy over whether two or three drugs should be used. He also questioned the method used to determine whether an inmate is actually unconscious before receiving the lethal injection.

"The Montana protocol has problems," Sherlock said in his 26-page judgment.

"All three of these concerns create a substantial risk of serious harm violative of the plaintiff's right to be protected from cruel and unusual punishment."

Lethal injection

"There's not going to be a huge clamour of 'We use this all the time.' ... This isn't Texas."
Ron Waterman, lawyer for the ACLU

Sherlock said the state legislature needs to rejig the statutes to bring the execution protocol into line with Montana's Constitution.

Ron Waterman, lawyer for the civil liberties union, suggests getting those changes passed by the state legislature could be a formidable task.

"Even if they went forward and wanted to change the statute, there's no guarantee, with how the legislature has been divided, that the statute can be changed," said Waterman.

"That's a steeper hill to climb."

He also doubts there is a lot of support for revamping the execution method.

"The truth of the matter is we've not used the death penalty for some time. We have gone more than a decade without any new capital cases being charged," he said.

"There's not going to be a huge clamour of 'We use this all the time.'... This isn't Texas."

THE CANADIAN PRESS

Central Mexico

17 bodies found at Mexican farm

Mexican officials say the dismembered bodies of 17 slain men have been found on a farm in central Mexico, in an area disputed by violent drug cartels.

Jalisco state prosecutor Tomas Coronado Olmos says the bodies were dumped by a highway in the town of Tizapan el Alto near the border between Jalisco and Michoacan states. Authorities discovered the bodies Sunday, while Mexicans celebrated Independence Day.

Coronado Olmos didn't reveal the identities of the slain but said the bodies were naked, mutilated and stacked with chains around their necks. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Gas-and-dash

Gas attendant struck by car, killed

Toronto police are hunting for a suspect after a gas station attendant was killed in an alleged gas-and-dash.

The incident happened just after 9 p.m. Saturday in midtown Toronto (near the Allen Road and Eglinton Avenue area).

Police say the suspect had just filled up with about $112 worth of gas when he jumped in his vehicle and drove away, hitting and dragging the gas station employee.

The 44-year-old attendant was rushed to hospital where he died.

Police say the suspect was driving a silver or grey Isuzu Rodeo SUV.

THE CANADIAN PRESS

Neo-Nazis

German police scandal uncovered

Information that could have led to the arrest of three fugitive neo-Nazis later implicated in a string of far-right murders may have remained unused in German police files for a decade, according to a newspaper report Sunday.

The report by weekly Welt am Sonntag risks further embarrassing German authorities who for years failed to link members of the National Socialist Underground to the killing of 10 people from 2000 until 2007.

According to the newspaper, an informant in the far-right scene gave his Berlin police handler a tipoff on the trio's whereabouts as early as 2002.

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Zimbabwe's PM is warned by court about bigamy

Tribal laws. Tsvangirai marries Saturday but doesn't sign marriage register after court rules he's still married to another woman

Zimbabwean Prime Minister Morgan Tsvangirai is seen with his wife Elizabeth Macheka during a wedding ceremony in Harare, Saturday.
TSVANGIRAI MUKWAZHI/THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Zimbabwe's prime minister said at his marriage ceremony Saturday that he had to date several women to find the one he truly loves.

Prime Minister Morgan Tsvangirai dismissed as propaganda the reports by the state media that say his private life is irresponsible.

A Zimbabwe magistrate ruled on Friday that Tsvangirai could not go ahead with a formal wedding after a jilted ex-lover filed a suit against him claiming the two were still married under Zimbabwe's tribal laws. The court held that Tsvangirai paid a traditional bride price for the woman last year and therefore was married to her.

The magistrate cautioned Tsvangirai that if he signed a legal marriage register with his new wife he could be prosecuted for bigamy.

Tsvangirai, 60, and Elizabeth Macheka, 35, exchanged vows but did not sign the register. Tsvangirai said that he had not made errors in seeing women since his wife of 31 years, Susan, 50, died in 2009. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Jumping with precision

A member of a Russian traditional riding club jumps over his friend during the 200th anniversary festival of the battle of Borodino in 1812. It was the largest and bloodiest single day of action in the French invasion of Russia. DMITRY LOVETSKY/THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Elysee Palace 'renter'

'The people are the landlords' : Hollande

French President Francois Hollande and his partner welcomed visitors to their "rented" home: the sumptuous Elysee Palace on Sunday.

Hollande and Valerie Trierweiler shook hands and signed autographs for crowds lining up to see the 18th-century mansion during France's annual open-house festival when the doors to historical landmarks are opened. Hollande called himself "only a renter."

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Public warning

Scammer trying to improve sightlines

Some residents in West Vancouver have been receiving letters on city letterhead warning them to cut trees to nine metres or risk a fine. Police say the letter is a fraud and should be ignored.

MATT KIELTYKA/METRO

FFUN >> Saskatoon Hyundai
PRE-OWNED SUPERSTORE

CERTIFIED
RATES AS LOW AS 1.9%
Extends your existing coverage with up to 3 YEARS OR 60,000 kms Additional HYUNDAI Factory Warranty.

FFUN CERTIFIED PRE-OWNED >>
• 10 DAY/1000KM WARRANTY
• 7 DAY EXCHANGE GUARANTEE
• 92-POINT INSPECTION
• GUARANTEED PRICE POLICY

fall-a-palooza

ROCKING DEALS ON PRE-OWNED CARS, TRUCKS & SUV'S

888.814.5941 | 664.6767
saskatoonhyundai.com
2035 Idylwyld Drive North, Saskatoon, SK
FIND US ON FACEBOOK!

$69 /bi-weekly
2011 HYUNDAI ACCENT GL
$16,995 $10,777
SAVE $6218

$98 /bi-weekly
2011 HYUNDAI ELANTRA GL
$21,995 $15,777
SAVE $6218

$104 /bi-weekly
2009 HONDA CIVIC DXG
$14,995 $13,888
SAVE $1107

$116 /bi-weekly
2006 HONDA CIVIC EX
$12,995 $10,888
SAVE $2107

$198 /bi-weekly
2011 HYUNDAI GENESIS COUPE
$37,995 $32,555
SAVE $5440

$124 /bi-weekly
2012 HYUNDAI VELOSTER
$19,995 $18,888
SAVE $1107

$88 /bi-weekly
2009 CHEVROLET IMPALA LT
$12,995 $11,888
SAVE $1107

$96 /bi-weekly
2009 CHEVROLET AVEO 2LT
$16,995 $11,777
SAVE $5218

$156 /bi-weekly
2012 HYUNDAI SONATA GLS
$25,995 $23,888
SAVE $2107

$129 /bi-weekly
2012 HYUNDAI SONATA GLS
$26,995 $19,777
SAVE $4551

$109 /bi-weekly
2011 VW JETTA TRENDLINE
$18,995 $16,888
SAVE $2107

$82 /bi-weekly
2009 KIA RIO EX CONV
$12,995 $10,888
SAVE $2107

Price / payments exclude all applicable taxes and fees; OAC; EOE

NATO. Afghan police kill 4 U.S. service members in latest insider attack

Afghan police killed four American soldiers coming to their aid after a checkpoint attack Sunday, the third assault by government forces or insurgents disguised in military uniforms in as many days.

The escalating violence — including a NATO air strike that killed eight Afghan women and girls gathering firewood — is straining the military partnership between Kabul and NATO as the U.S. begins to withdraw thousands of troops sent three years ago to flush the Taliban from southern strongholds.

The attacks drew unusually strong criticism Sunday from the U.S. military's top officer, army Gen. Martin Dempsey, who called the problem of rogue Afghan soldiers and police turning their guns on allied troops "a very serious threat" to the war effort.

A weekend of deadly attacks began Friday night, when 15 insurgents disguised in U.S. army uniforms killed two Marines, wounded nine other people and destroyed six Harrier fighter jets at a major U.S. base in the south, military officials said. On Saturday, a gunman in the uniform of a government-backed militia force shot dead two British soldiers in Helmand province in the southwest.

On Sunday, an Afghan police officer turned his gun on NATO troops at a remote checkpoint in the southern province of Zabul, killing four American service members, according to Afghan and international officials.

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

'Galician Resistance'

4 suspected separatists arrested in Spain

The Interior Ministry says four people have been arrested in northwest Spain on suspicion of belonging to a violent, regional pro-independence group.

The ministry said in a statement that two of the arrests were made in the port city of Vigo on Saturday after police discovered two primed explosive devices in the trunk of a car, and two other suspects were arrested early Sunday.

It said the "suspected terrorists" belong to "the Galician Resistance" — a group of which little was known until November 2011 when another member was arrested in possession of explosives.

Spain has nationalist groups in Galicia, Catalonia and the Basque region, where armed group ETA has killed more than 825 people in a four-decade campaign to carve an independent state in northeastern Spain and southwestern France.

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Somalia. New president sworn into office after failed assassination

Somalia's new leader was inaugurated Sunday amid tight security in the capital, Mogadishu, four days after President Hassan Skeikh Mohamud survived an assassination attempt.

Mohamud, a teacher and activist, won the election last week against outgoing President Sheik Sharif Sheikh Ahmed by the legislative vote of 190 to 79.

The inauguration ceremony was attended by some regional leaders, including the prime minister of Ethiopia and the president of Djibouti.

The attempt on Mohamud's life on his second day in office highlighted the serious security challenges he faces as he takes the helm of a volatile country that has not had a stable government for more than two decades.

Mohamud himself acknowledged this fact, saying in his inauguration remarks that security was the paramount issue. He promised to be a democrat and to create "an effective justice system" that serves all Somalis.

Mohamud faces an uphill task unifying a fractious country in the face of the al-Qaida-linked Islamist insurgency and rebuilding a bombed-out infrastructure, food security and institutions.

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Foreign backing

- The UN-backed political process that resulted in Mohamud's election was condemned by Islamist militants who said it was manipulated by the West.
- But Mohamud has the support of the international community, which wants him to succeed and bring stability to the troubled Horn of Africa nation.

Thousands of puppy distributors can be found online, and experts say Internet shopping is worsening the problem of inhumane dog breeding.

CHRISTOPHER FURLONG/GETTY IMAGES FILE

Web driving unethical puppy farms: Experts

Animal welfare. Health problems common among pets

KIERON MONKS
Metro World News

A dustbin full of decomposing puppies was discovered at a farm in Wales last week. The previous day, investigators seized 200 dogs from a suspected puppy mill in Arkansas, where conditions were so unhealthy they wore biohazard suits. In Australia, a government review has been ordered into a problem that is out of control.

Websites such as puppyfind.com make distribution as easy as buying DVDs, offering a directory of 50,000 sellers to choose from. "Puppies for sale may be shipped worldwide and include crate," the site claims.

But experts believe that Internet shopping is encouraging unethical puppy farmers, with the Humane Society of the United States (HSUS) estimating that these farms now produce 400,000 litters a year.

"The Internet has made it easy for a business to seem respectable," Andy Robbins, a spokesman for the Royal Society for Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, Britain's largest animal-welfare charity, told Metro. "People see a slick website and assume everything is fine. Technology has also made it much easier to forge health certificates."

A Kennel Club survey found that 20 per cent of British puppy owners bought their animal online, which can lead to a nasty surprise.

"We compare it to battery farming chickens, with the dogs treated as machines producing litters continuously in awful conditions," Kennel Club PR manager Heidi Ancell told Metro. "Some turn out OK, but many will have health problems and the puppy often dies soon after."

Ancell added it was a "potential risk" that traumatized or sick animals could be a threat to their owners.

Others feel buyers are to blame. "Breeders are responding to a demand," pet-lifestyle expert Dr. Jessica Vogelsang of the UC Davis School of Veterinary Medicine wrote on her website. "The public continues to approach dog ownership with a callous disregard and need for instant gratification that creates a never-ending supply of poorly bred animals that wind up in shelters and dead."

Tips on buying a puppy

- Avoid buying online.
- Insist on seeing the puppy with its mother in its breeding environment.
- Have the animal receive a full medical from a trusted doctor.

Police stop striking miners in their tracks

South African police halted a peaceful march by striking miners without violence Sunday, a day after firing rubber bullets and tear gas to disperse illegal protesters.

Officers barricaded a main road into Rustenburg, northwest of Johannesburg, and persuaded about 500 miners that their march was illegal and that they should go home.

Sunday's protesters from Anglo American Platinum mines wanted to march to the Rustenburg police station to demand an end to the violence against strikers. Some carried sticks, but there were none of the machetes, spears and clubs that have marked previous protests for higher wages.

On Saturday, police raided hostels at Lonmin platinum mine and collected homemade weapons. They fired rubber bullets and tear gas to force people into their homes.

It was the first police action since officers killed 34 miners on Aug. 16 in state violence that shocked the nation. The strikes have shut down one gold and six platinum mines, destabilizing the country's mining sector.

Saturday's show of force followed a government vow to halt illegal protests.

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A striking platinum miner takes part in a march to the Rustenburg, South Africa, police station on Sunday. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Reward for killing Rushdie gets a boost

Old vendetta. 1989 fatwa by late Iranian leader against British Indian author calls for his death over depictions of Muhammad in novel

Author Salman Rushdie poses on the red carpet Sept. 9 for the new movie Midnight's Children during the 37th annual Toronto International Film Festival. NATHAN DENETTE/THE CANADIAN PRESS

A semi-official religious foundation in Iran has increased a reward it had offered for the killing of British author Salman Rushdie to $3.3 million US from $2.8 million, a newspaper reported, days after protests coursed through the Muslim world over alleged insults to the Prophet Muhammad.

Hardline Jomhoori Eslami daily and other newspapers reported on Sunday that the move appeared to be linked to protests over an amateurish anti-Islam film, which crowds in some 20 countries said drove them to defend their faith — in some cases by attacking American embassies.

The report said the 15 Khordad Foundation will pay the higher reward to whoever acts on the 1989 fatwa, or religious edict, issued by Iran's late leader Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini, which called for the death of the author of The Satanic Verses because the novel was considered blasphemous.

The paper said the decision to boost the original reward, offered in the 1990s, came from foundation head Ayatollah Hassan Saneii.

Khomeini's fatwa sent Rushdie into hiding under police protection, but that didn't stop him from writing more novels. In 1990, he published an apology and reiterated his respect for Islam. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Ringing in Rosh Hashanah

An Ultra-Orthodox Jew prays at the Western Wall in Jerusalem's Old City, before the start of the holiday Rosh Hashanah early Sunday. Jews marked the holiday of Rosh Hashanah, or the Jewish New Year, at sundown Sunday. BERNAT ARMANGUE/THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Message of hate

Anti-Semitic posters shock Winnipeg

Winnipeg police are investigating after "disgusting" anti-Semitic posters were put up around downtown Winnipeg Friday evening, targeting the city's Mayor Sam Katz and other members of the local community.

"I was shocked and disgusted to learn of the anti-Semitic posters that were put up throughout downtown Winnipeg late last night," said Vic Toews, MP for the riding of Provencher, in a statement on his website Saturday.

ELISHA DACEY/METRO

Political stance

U.S., Israel agree on Iran: Rice

America's ambassador to the United Nations says there's "no daylight" between the United States and Israel when it comes to stopping Iran from developing a nuclear weapon. But Susan Rice also says U.S.-Israeli intelligence indicates that the two nations have "considerable time" before that happens.

Rice was responding to a steady drumbeat of warnings in recent days by Israeli Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu that Iran is dangerously close to acquiring an atomic weapon.

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Labour negotiations

CAW will focus on talks with Ford

The head of the Canadian Auto Workers says the union will focus its negotiations with the Big Three automakers on reaching a deal with Ford. Ken Lewenza says Ford has shown the most willingness to reach a new contract and the union will work around the clock to achieve that. The CAW has threatened strike action if there is no deal by late Monday night.

THE CANADIAN PRESS

Foreign investment

Rallies denounce India's decision to open retail market

Angry Indian opposition parties protested Saturday against the government's decision to open the country's huge retail market to foreign retailers. The government's surprise announcement that it will allow foreign investment in retail and aviation and the sale of minority stakes in four state-run companies has evoked sharp criticism.

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

On its anniversary, Occupy Wall Street struggles to define itself

Sept. 17 celebrations.
What started as protest against corporate greed became protest against 'every social ill'

Occupy Wall Street began to disintegrate in rapid fashion last winter, when the weekly meetings in New York City devolved into a spectacle of fist fights and vicious arguments.

Punches were thrown and objects were hurled at moderators' heads. Protesters accused each other of being patriarchal and racist and domineering. Nobody could agree on anything and nobody was in charge. The moderators went on strike and refused to show up, followed in quick succession by the people who kept the meeting minutes. And then the meetings stopped altogether.

In the city where the movement was born, Occupy was falling apart. "We weren't talking about real things at that point," says Pete Dutro, a tattoo artist who used to manage Occupy's finances but became disillusioned by the infighting and walked away months ago. "We were talking about each other."

The trouble with Occupy Wall Street, a year after it bloomed in a granite park in lower Manhattan and spread across the globe, is that nobody really knows what it is anymore.

On Monday, protesters will converge near the New York Stock Exchange to celebrate Occupy's anniversary, marking the day they began camping out in Zuccotti Park in lower Manhattan's financial district. Marches and rallies in more than 30 cities around the world will commemorate the day.

About 300 people observing the anniversary marched Saturday, and at least a dozen were arrested, mostly on charges of disorderly conduct, police said.

But the movement is now a shadow of its mighty infancy, when a group of young people harnessed the power of a disillusioned nation and took to the streets chanting about corporate greed and inequality.

Back then it was a rallying cry, a force to be reckoned with. But as the encampments were broken up and protesters lost a gathering place, Occupy in turn lost its ability to organize.

The movement had grown too large too quickly. Without leaders or specific demands, what started as a protest against income inequality turned into an amorphous protest against everything wrong with the world.

"We were there to occupy Wall Street," Dutro says. "Not to talk about every social ill that we have."

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Loose affiliation

- The community that took shape in Zuccotti Park still exists, albeit in a far less cohesive form. Occupiers mostly keep in touch through a smattering of websites and social networks.
- Meetings are generally only convened to organize around specific events, like the much-hyped May Day event that ultimately fizzled last spring.

The Raging Grannies, an Occupy Wall Street music group, sing a song Sunday in New York City's Foley Square on the eve of the one-year anniversary of the start of their movement. ANDREW BURTON/GETTY IMAGES

METRO EDITOR TAKES ON TOUGHEST ASSIGNMENT YET

URBAN COMPASS
Paul Sullivan
saskatoon@metronews.ca

If you've visited the Metro News website, you have seen Elisha Dacey's new blog Half Off, and if you haven't visited the site, now is a great time to start.

Because Elisha has just embarked on the quest of a lifetime. She is the managing editor of Metro Winnipeg, and the title of her blog refers to her determination to lose one-half her body weight.

Which is brave and foolhardy. Brave because it takes guts to tell the world you weigh 295 pounds, which is an ideal weight for a CFL nose tackle, not so much for a desk jockey who's also trying to raise a family.

Foolhardy because when you tell thousands of people you're going to do something, you at least have to try, and when you're trying to lose weight, there are lots of ways to fail and only one way to succeed.

Half Off

... when you're trying to lose weight, there are lots of ways to fail and only one way to succeed.

So I want to throw my, er, weight, behind Elisha's quest. I know what's she's going through. I have been through a recent weight-loss journey of my own. It started after Christmas when I felt more stuffed than the yuletide bird, and the scale, which cracked 227, confirmed it.

I felt awful. Even my socks were too tight. Just getting in and out of the car was an Olympic event. Blood-sugar levels were poised on red alert. My "real age" put me into the Moses demographic.

So I did what Elisha's doing. I went on Weight Watchers. And stuck to it somehow, through thick and all the way to thin, which on any given day is about 175 pounds. I feel as if I've been let out of jail, or at least as if I've busted out of Mr. Big & Tall.

On her blog, Elisha talks about the challenges. The impulse, after a bad day, to bury her face in a pail of chocolate ice cream or one of the many fat festivals disguised as restaurants, handily located on every street corner.

Habits die hard and habits formed early die harder. When you learn, almost before you speak, to seek consolation in food, is it any wonder that when the going gets tough, the tough start eating?

So far, Elisha's overcome the challenges. She thanks Weight Watchers for giving its suffering subjects a weekly point allowance that accommodates the odd detour onto the Rocky Road. The other thing I really like about WW is that, in its points system, fruit and vegetables are free. That trains you to snack on apples and carrots instead of things that harden your arteries.

So, Elisha, hang in there. You'll have times like last Thursday, when the only solution involves bacon, cheese and two all-beef patties, etc. But here's a reliable secret: When you're starving, everything tastes good. Even celery.

After a while, celery tastes better, and I'm not making that up.

Now you're just pulling my finger

MATTHIAS SCHRADER/THE ASSOCIATED PRESS PHOTOS

German championships

More than just twiddling thumbs

A Bavarian man pulls his opponent over the table during the German Finger Wrestling championships in Warngau, Germany, on Sunday.

Competitors battled for the title in this traditional rural sport where the winner has to pull his opponent over the marked line on the table.

In the game — also known as Fingerhakeln — the competitors use nothing more than their fingers and a leather band to defeat opponents.

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A judge adjusts the leather band held by two competitors with their middle fingers at the German Finger Wrestling championships in Warngau, Germany, on Sunday.

Lederhosen-clad men

- More than 150 men in Warngau took part.
- Legend has it that finger wrestling started as a way to settle arguments, Time magazine says.
- Bloody knuckles, stretched ligaments and tendons are all part of the competition, according to the magazine.
- The tug-of-war is now a regulated sport, with rules governing the size of the table and width of the leather band.

Parking-lot birth

How to obtain a lifetime supply of NASCAR tickets

A New Hampshire woman and her baby are doing fine after the woman gave birth in the New Hampshire Motor Speedway parking lot.

Shawna Arnold began going into labour Friday and she and her boyfriend began driving to a hospital. But when she realized she was about to give birth on the way, they made a pit stop at the racetrack parking lot in Loudon.

Arnold tells WMUR-TV that she and her boyfriend delivered the baby, named Katie, in their car. An EMT at the track then came to help, and the couple and the baby were taken to a hospital.

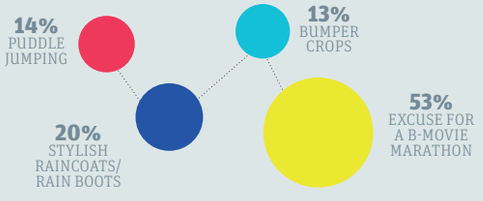
Speedway general manager Jerry Gappens has awarded the baby two tickets to NASCAR races for the rest of her life.

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Metropolitan Panel

Register at metropolitanpanel.ca and take the quick poll

What's the best thing about a good fall downpour?



Twitter

@JerryBerko:
Great to be back in #YXE after a #roadtrip to BC. Lots of #hiking, grazing and partaking of fermented beverages. Time for #weightloss.

@Jay_Grossman:
#Sask Blades WHL G Andrey Makarov has signed a 3 yr NHL contract with the Buffalo #Sabres

@RGulka:
Saw everyone, spent some money, and said bye to the bro. Always a unreal time in Sask. Drive home starts now. #7hours #timetosleep

@Stevil78:
Its sad when over 100+ yards Montreal has are penalties. Sask has the second lowest penalties in the league. Well "had" . #CFL #Yardage

@birksy69:
Wish I was in sask with ma dawggs #rickrossgrunt

metro

President Bill McDonald • Vice-President & Group Publisher, Metro Western Canada Steve Shrout • Editor-in-Chief Charlotte Empey • Deputy Editor Fernando Carneiro • National Deputy Editor, Digital Quin Parker • Managing Editor, Saskatoon Tara Campbell • Managing Editor, News & Business Amber Shortt • Managing Editor, Life & Entertainment Dean Lisk • Vice-President, Sales Quin Millar • National Sales Director Peter Bartrem • Sales Manager Barry Paton • Vice-President, Business Ventures Tracy Day • Vice-President, Creative Jeff Smith • Vice-President, Marketing & Interactive Jodi Brown, Vice-President, Finance Phil Jameson METRO SASKATOON • Telephone: 306-649-2025 • Toll free: 1-877-895-7193 • Fax: 1-888-895-6931 • Advertising: adinfosaskatoon@metronews.ca • Distribution: saskatoon_distribution@metronews.ca • News tips: saskatoon@metronews.ca • Letters to the Editor: saskatoonletters@metronews.ca

SCENE 2

Bad 25, directed by Spike Lee, features commentary from celebrities who were inspired by Michael Jackson, including Mariah Carey. HANDOUT

Spike Lee doc transcends the man in the mirror

Bad 25. Documentary puts spotlight on the undeniable talent and human side of Michael Jackson — behind the fame and chaos

LIZ BROWN
scene@metronews.ca

What do you do when you're the man behind the bestselling album in music history?

You vow that your next one will be even better, naturally.

Such is the pursuit of perfection that propelled — and plagued — Michael Jackson as he spent two years writing and composing Bad, his followup to 1982's Thriller.

In Spike Lee's documentary, Bad 25, we learn that in the Bad years, Jackson scrawled '100 million' on his bathroom mirror, so every morning as he brushed his teeth, he'd be reminded of his goal — sell 100 million records.

The album, released in 1987, ended up being a commercial and critical success, with around 40 million copies sold. But it never came close to the sales of Thriller, which rang in somewhere near the 100 million mark.

The failure to reach his 100 million goal wasn't for lack of effort on Jackson's part, though.

Bad 25 reveals the late-night dance sessions, the meticulous recordings and the almost pathological work ethic of a man who seemed to be chasing a near-impossible dream.

"Michael got his work ethic from his father," says Lee on Saturday at Toronto's Trump Hotel, dressed in a T-shirt sporting Michael Jackson's iconic Bad pose, just hours before the North American premiere of his documentary at TIFF.

"(Joe Jackson) had him singing and dancing from five, six years old. I'm not going to make a villain out of Joe Jackson. Many people do, but he got their asses out of Gary Indiana and his children didn't have to work at the steel mill that he slaved at. Something worked. He's not all bad."

But as anyone knows, getting out of Gary and becoming the world's biggest pop star didn't come without its struggles. As Jackson was promoting Bad and selling out venues around the world in a 16-month tour that set three world records, darkness was moving in on his star power.

The media became increasingly cruel as Jackson's behaviour became increasingly bizarre — there were tales of him sleeping in a hyperbaric chamber, his pet chimpanzee Bubbles, and rumours that he had tried to buy the Elephant Man's bones.

In the documentary, Jackson's choreographer and confidant Vince Patterson shares some advice he gave the superstar: Don't ever let a bully know they're hurting you.

It's a poignant moment when we are reminded that despite his fame and fortune, Jackson was human — a remarkably talented human — and that somewhere in the mess of scandals and rumours, the wonder of that talent got lost.

Bad 25 reminds us just how wondrous that talent was. Witness the lean in Smooth Criminal (don't hold your breath — this doc doesn't reveal the secret behind it), or the head-turning intro to The Way You Make Me Feel.

For Lee, Bad 25 is an ode to Jackson the performer; a tribute to an artist and friend he respected. "I try not to focus on the fact that he's not here, because the way I take it, Michael's not here in his physical form, but he's here in his spiritual form and his music is here," says Lee.

So bad it's good

The reissue of the Bad album, Bad 25, comes out on Tuesday.

- Album. Includes unreleased demos and a DVD of his performance at Wembley Stadium, attended by Prince Charles and Princess Diana.
- Documentary. Spike Lee's documentary Bad 25 will air on ABC on November 22.

All grown op

Weeds. As the cult hit ends, Mary-Louise Parker reflects on her controversial character

AMBER RAY
Metro New York

While eight seasons of Weeds came to a close last night, one lingering question regarding pot-selling mom Nancy Botwin remains: is she an indomitable provider for her family or the worst mother ever?

"I never want to resolve that," series creator Jenji Kohan says. "I mean, one of the main premises of Weeds is this gray area, that no one is black and white, that no one's the worst mother or the greatest mother, that everyone is a mess to a certain extent and you're not defined by how you're behaving on one specific day."

The woman who brought Nancy to life, actress Mary-Louise Parker, believes that realistic dichotomy — illegal endeavors aside, perhaps — is what has made the character so endearing.

"She's guileless," Parker says. "She just continues to make the wrong choices. Her heart's usually in the right place, and she just can't be defeated, and she keeps trying. When I distill her into one thing, that's what I think about ... and what I like about her."

Mary-Louise Parker's role is so endearing because of a dichotomy. HANDOUT

On the web

Qriket

Star Trek actor George Takei unveils a musical inspired by time in Japanese internment camp.

Lianne La Havas is one for the future. GETTY IMAGES

Lianne La Havas shows her love is Big Enough

New music. English entertainer arrives on the scene with a soul-folk sugar that is whip-smart and refreshingly honest

Quote

"It's quite easy to write about your pain but you should write about your happiness as well. It's just as strong a relationship."

Lianne La Havas
Talking about how she writes her songs.

EVE HYMAN
Metro World News

England spawns smart, lovely songbirds like Adele and Lily Allen and, its latest ingénue, Lianne La Havas.

The debut from the 23-year-old singer/songwriter, Is Your Love Big Enough? features jazz-soul production and haunting pipes. Comparisons to Norah Jones or Lauryn Hill are to be expected. But La Havas' style is remarkably original and uplifting.

"When I started playing the guitar, my songwriting changed," she says. "I started exploring different ways I could write songs."

Her look is Paris boudoir meets English country road. She is a retro vision seeped in Sade echoes and jazz guitar.

Songwriting has a through-the-looking-glass sort of poetry that keeps the listener hooked on every syllable so as not to miss a poignant turn of phrase.

"It's quite an eclectic record," the singer says. "There's an overall theme of love. The sounds are very electric-guitar led."

Guitar lines alternate from harp-like tinkles to rhythmic slide on songs like Empty and No Room For Doubt and bass-y riffs on the powerful Forget.

With lyrics that are both earnest and whip-smart, La Havas effortlessly weaves whimsical with wise. Even her blues sparkle. Dropping in on the artist's world is a pleasure, her Victorian neckline and cosy-chic side-bun package is a homespun musical treat.

"It's quite easy to write about your pain but you should write about your happiness as well," she explains. "It's just as strong a relationship."

The singer says the title track of her album features a different type of strong relationship.

"My single, Is Your Love Big Enough? is not about any of my boyfriends," she says, bucking the scorned woman trend. "It's written about a great time I had when I was in New York."

SHARE ALERT!
Qriket
SCAN, SHARE AND WIN!
Metro and Qriket are giving away $10,000 in instant cash prizing for the month of September.
Metro has partnered with Qriket to add more fun and sharing to your daily news fix.
Qriket is a free iPhone app that rewards you for scanning QR codes, so now you can stay informed with Metro and win prizes when you choose to scan with the Qriket app.
Just download the Qriket app and use it to scan QR codes to access enhanced content, share with your friends, and play instant win games.
And this month, scanning the Qriket branded codes in Metro activates $10,000 in bonus instant cash prizes just for Metro readers!
Wanna play?
1) Download the free Qriket app for your iphone.
2) Use it to scan the Qriket QR codes you see in Metro, and they'll automatically get shared with your friends.
3) The more you scan, the more you share, the more chances you have to win!
Qriket
metro

Great albums are dropping like leaves this fall, so be sure to pick them all up

Music review. Check out this lineup of what is coming up this season and the big name offerings that will delight your ears

PAT HEALY
Metro World News

Green Day is back with a new album coming out on Sept. 25. ALL PHOTOS HANDOUT

50 Cent's Street King Immortal is being released Nov. 13.

Carly Rae Jepsen's new album is out on Sept.18.

P!nk's The Truth About Love, Sept. 18.

If summer didn't bring you the music you needed, fall is shaping up to be full of blockbusters.

SEPT. 18
G.O.O.D. Music
Cruel Summer
"Ain't nobody fresher than my mother f—ing clique" raps Big Sean on one of the 12 tracks on Kanye West's latest collaborative project. And he's right. In addition to Big Sean, 'Ye corralled longtime pals like Jay-Z and Pusha T, younger artists like Teyana Taylor and CyHi the Prynce as well as hall of famers like R. Kelly and Ghostface Killah. Thankfully, Cruel Summer will arrive while summer is still here.

The Killers
Battle Born
A few years ago when critics started likening The Killers' second album to Bruce Springsteen, the comparison seemed a little bit like grasping at straws, but it seems like in the four years since their last studio album, the band must have said, 'Hey, maybe we should listen to that guy that everybody compared us to.' There's plenty of blonde hair blowin' in the summer wind and drivin' in my daddy's car here, but fortunately Brandon Flowers and crew put their own glitzy spin on what they sonically borrow from the synth-heavy notions of Born in the U.S.A. -era Boss.

P!NK
The Truth About Love
Yes, P!NK has been combining kiss-off anthems with double-entendres since day one, but instead of recycling the same thing over and over, it seems more like she has been working her whole career towards this. Tempering her usual aggression are fun collaborations (with Eminem, Lily Allen and fun singer Nate Reuss) and songs that actually sound happy. Well, as happy as P!nk can be, singing lines like, "I hate you so much, it must be love."

Carly Rae Jepsen
Kiss
While skeptics may be eager to dismiss Carly Rae Jepsen as a one-hit-wonder, they should take into consideration what a huge hit Call Me Maybe was. Before she came into your life you missed her so bad, you missed her so, so bad. See? The song is so in your head right now. With the knack for a pop melody she has thus far clearly demonstrated, how could CRJ not have a few more tunes that are that catchy?

SEPT. 25
Green Day
¡UNO!
After an absurdly prolific winter, Green Day had enough material for three separate albums, so instead of paring down that material they'll just go on ahead and release three separate albums, (appropriately titled ¡UNO! ¡DOS! and ¡TRÉ!) every other month through January.

Singer Billie Joe Armstrong's face is on the cover of this album, and album two and three will feature the faces of bassist Mike Dirnt and drummer Tré Cool (¡TRÉ!, get it?) but that doesn't mean any of these are solo albums.

Unlike the past two Green Day releases, there's not even a lofty concept running through these albums either: And judging from the four singles that have already been released, this is the type of classic straight-ahead punk pop that put the band on the map almost 20 years ago.

No Doubt
Push and Shove
As far as long lapses between albums go, No Doubt's sixth studio album is up there with Chinese Democracy and Detox, coming 11 years after its predecessor, 2001's Rock Steady.

Judging from the first two tunes to emerge (both the 6-minute Settle Down and the title track are almost like an open letter to Santigold, saying, 'Hey baby, we were here first') this album will be more worth the wait than the Guns N' Roses album that took 14 years to make.

Mumford & Sons
Babel
Coming three years after their 2009 debut, this British band's new single I Will Wait proves that they have waited until they were ready to release their best possible material. The Mumfords are more than just some novelty conjurers of old timey songs, but a group who has the ability to mine lush layers of harmonies to make timeless uplifting tunes.

OCT. 9
Ellie Goulding
Halcyon
Her 2010 song Lights may have been the biggest sleeper hit of … well, 2012. That is indeed a sleeper hit. With her second album, the world is finally ready for this British singer, who we should point out, began dating Skrillex in the time since releasing her debut. Though he doesn't have any production credits on the album, the bond is just a hint at her willingness to go on sonic adventures. If that's the hint though, single Anything Could Happen is the promise.

OCT. 22
Taylor Swift
Red
Last week's stunning performance of the new song Ronan at the Stand Up To Cancer fundraiser may have been the most emotional song that Taylor Swift has ever written. That song is reportedly not on the upcoming album. If she's able to discard songs that good, we can't wait to hear the ones that did make the cut.

OCT. 23
Titus Andronicus
Local Business
Their last release was a concept album about the Civil War, and if you didn't hear it and this sounds especially dorky to you, it actually rocked. But this one promises to rock even more, with the band writing on their Tumblr: "Local Business is of the earth. Titus Andronicus the studious recording project and Titus Andronicus the raucous touring machine are no longer two distinct beings; there is only Titus Andronicus, rock and roll band."

Hell yeah!

NOV. 6
Aerosmith
Music From Another Dimension
And in the category of America's greatest rock 'n' roll band with all original members still living, the winner is… Aerosmith. This album makes the list primarily because of its audacious title. Do Aerosmith have what it takes to make music from another dimension? We'll see.

NOV. 13
Big Boi
Vicious Lies and Dangerous Rumors
It almost feels like Big Boi and Aerosmith switched the album titles they were supposed to use, doesn't it? Big Boi is indeed tapping into another dimension with his second album outside of the Outkast moniker. Instead of continuing on the fun funk tip he perfected with Sir Lucious Left Foot the rapper has enlisted the assistance of indie bands like Phantogram and Little Dragon.

50 Cent
Street King Immortal
Remember when Kanye and 50 released an album on the same day and each of them said that they would retire if their album didn't perform as well as the other's?

Well, Curtis didn't do as well as Graduation but thankfully Mr. Curtis Jackson did not retire. In fact, with his fifth album, he has brought in enough guest stars that it almost seems like he's trying to compete with Cruel Summer for sheer group effort. So far it's been revealed that Street King Immortal will feature cameos from Alicia Keys, Lil' Kim, Akon, Swizz Beatz, Busta Rhymes, Eminem, Chris Brown and Adam Levine.

NOV. 27
Alicia Keys
Girl on Fire
Hopefully you didn't get too distracted by Olympic gold medalist Gabby Douglas tumbling all over the stage during Alicia Keys' VMAs performance last week, because behind the piano, Keys was really lighting it up. After guesting on everybody else's album for the past few years, it's the singer's time to shine again. Because no one, no one, no one can get in the way of what she's feeling.

Kristen 'poured her heart out'

Have Kristen Stewart and Robert Pattinson moved back in together?

"They pretty much decided they couldn't live without each other," a source tells Perez Hilton.

"Kristen poured her heart out to Robert and told him it was a one-off and a mistake. Rob sees it as Kristen made a really stupid mistake."

This conversation apparently took place on Reese Witherspoon's ranch — while Ryan Phillippe took notes hiding in a laundry basket. (Kidding Ry.)

Kristen Stewart

Diana Agron

Agron not very Glee-ful?

Where was Diana Agron, a.k.a. Quinn, on the Glee season premiere? Word is the cheerleader will be leaving the series earlier than expected.

"Dianna was unhappy and had been trying to get off the show for a while," an insider tells Us.

"She and producers came to an agreement where they let her go. That's what she wanted." A rep for the show and the network said the report was false.

Gaga's new tat

Lady Gaga

Before getting her head tattooed inside a giant perfume bottle last Thursday (yes, you read that correctly) Lady Gaga drank tequila and smoked cigarettes.

The Mother Monster got the tat — of a cherub with wings — to promote her new fragrance Fame.

METRO DISH

OUR TAKE ON THE WORLD OF CELEBRITIES

The Word

Nicki Minaj and Keith Urban join Idol

THE WORD
Dorothy Robinson
scene@metronews.ca

The new judges panel for the 12th season of American Idol was announced Sunday via a press release from Fox. Joining confirmed judges Mariah Carey and Randy Jackson will be the new additions of Nicki Minaj and Keith Urban.

"With the exciting addition of Mariah Carey, Keith Urban and Nicki Minaj, alongside Randy Jackson, American Idol's star power has never been so great," said Idol executive producer Simon Fuller in a boilerplate quote. Judging by other statements in the release — "We've put together one of the most exciting judging panels around," said Mike Darnell, president of alternative entertainment for Fox — you can tell the network honchos are feeling the heat from the other all-star panels at rival singing competitions such as The Voice and X-Factor, where Britney Spears is currently killing it as a judge.

What do you think of these new additions? As always, feel free to write in to let me know your opinion. As for this gossip columnist, I just hope Nicki Minaj's multiple personalities can make up for Urban's lack of one.

Kate Middleton ALL PHOTOS GETTY IMAGES

Royal lawyers: Block those nips!

Will the Italian media group Mondadori lose their shirts for publishing photos of Kate Middleton without hers on?

It certainly looks that way, with the Royal Family seeking damages from Mondadori, which is owned by former Italian premier Silvio Berlusconi.

Lawyers for the Royals are also going to court in France to try to stop further publication in that country of the now-infamous topless photos of Kate.

Meanwhile, YouPorn.com — a site that usually doesn't need publicity — has generated some by offering an "open checkbook" to procure the snaps.

It might just be me, but it's hard to find any sympathy for Middleton. When you know you are going to become the next Queen of England, it's time to put your topless sunbathing days behind you. Seems like a fair swap, right?

Lively-Reynolds wedding was super top-secret

Green Lantern co-stars Blake Lively and Ryan Reynolds married in secret last week, and People Magazine says you weren't the only one out of the loop. "Not even the people who baked the cake or the plantation owners had any idea," that the wedding was happening, says their senior writer.

Ryan Reynolds

Twitter

@mindykaling
@RealRonHoward and @tomhanks listening carefully to a stunt coordinator in a safety meeting on the set of Splash. #Fakepicsiwant

@eliroth
I think by now Paul Thomas Anderson and Paul W.S. Anderson must have some kind of Lancaster Dodd/Freddie Quell relationship.

@AlbertBrooks
How many millions of years do humans have to live before they stop going crazy over a naked breast?

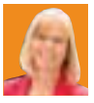
@SteveMartinToGo
Just wondering. Women are different from men, right? But are their bodies different too?

LIFE 3

Mobile manners: Teach them etiquette, and take notes yourself

Teach your kids mobile manners early on. ISTOCK

Parenting. Back to school shopping often involves getting the latest cellphone. Too bad the instruction manuals don't include lessons on behaviour



IT'S ALL RELATIVE
Kathy Buckworth,
kathybuckworth.com

The new school year is well underway, and with it, a new learning challenge for parents: How to teach kids to use their cellphones.

Not just from a safety perspective (not texting or talking on a handheld device when driving, not walking across busy roads and texting, not giving away passwords, etc.), but from a "mobile manners" point of view as well.

It's important as role models that parents practice what they preach and adhere to the following rules themselves.

• Not texting or answering calls when in the middle of a conversation, unless you have advised the person you're speaking with you might have to do so at some point.

• No texting during mealtime. (First one to pick up their phone does the dishes!)

• Enforcing that you support the "no cellphone" rule in the classroom by not calling or texting your kids during the school day unless urgent.

• Not talking on a cellphone in quiet public places.

It's also important to research the coverage plan you want to purchase.

Examine the type of usage you expect your child to have (just texting and calling, no Internet access for younger kids) and speak to an independent dealer who can show you different carrier packages.

Unlimited plans are available, and a pre-paid option will easily keep the budget in line.

Depending on the age of the child and his earning ability, have him pay for the monthly usage to get an understanding of the expense.

And remember, even the "smartest" of phones can be simplified down to just texting and talking, depending on the plan you choose, so repurposing an old smartphone of your own is an option.

KATHY BUCKWORTH IS AN AWARD WINNING WRITER. VISIT KATHYBUCKWORTH.COM/ OR FOLLOW KATHY ON TWITTER @KATHYBUCKWORTH

Cells by the numbers

According to a new study by President's Choice Services Inc., 48 per cent of Canadian parents with children aged 11 and older now let their kids carry a cellphone. The majority of Canadians (52 per cent) felt somewhere between the ages of 13 to 16 was an appropriate age to give a child a mobile device, compared to the 31 per cent of Canadians who felt that teens age 17 or older could better handle the responsibility of a cellphone. Approximately 10 per cent cited 9 to 12 as the right age bracket; while only one per cent felt children aged 6 to 8 should have their own mobile device.

Exclusively online

metronews.ca/voices

- In style. Why did Mommy's fashion sense go out the window with her abs? Follow along with the comedic (mis) adventures of mommyhood online with Reasons Mommy Drinks at metronews.ca/voices

Head lice don't have to create a hairy situation

LINDA LABAN
Metro World News in Boston

Head lice isn't an aspect of parenting that anyone wants a part of, but it's so common that most end up dealing with it at some point.

"Lice are so prevalent, I've had to deal with it as a parent, too," says Boston-based pediatrician Dr. Nancy Kahn, a clinical instructor of pediatric medicine at Harvard Medical School.

"One study found that one in four elementary school kids gets them. They're so contagious, but they have to be transported by another vehicle. You get them from sharing scrunchies, a comb, brush or hat with someone who has them."

The big problem isn't killing the adult lice; it's detecting the eggs, called nits, and removing them to prevent further infection.

Nits stick like glue to the hair shaft. "The eggs are grayish-white," Kahn says. "If you see a white spot on the hair that can be flicked off, it isn't nits, it's dandruff or [lint]. If it's stuck on the hair, it's nits."

Treatment varies from over-the-counter shampoos and topical solutions, but "these contain pesticides, so there is the worry that you're putting pesticides on your child's head for several hours," Kahn says.

For a home remedy, try olive oil: "This basically suffocates them," she says.

Hair to help

Here are some resources to rid your child's hair of lice.

- Ladibugs. This chemical-free line includes shampoo, conditioner, leave-in mint spray, serum and mousse. The company also offers a 24-hour hotline if you find yourself in need of help. ladibugshaircare.com
- Fairy Tales Hair Cares. Its Rosemary Repel line of hair care utilizes organic ingredients such as rosemary, tea tree, citronella, peppermint and lavender oils to combat the pesky bugs. You can also download its free iPhone app, The Facts of Lice, to learn about outbreaks in your area or report one of your own. fairytaleshaircare.com
- LiceGuard. In addition to pesticide-free shampoo, LiceGuard also makes the Robi Comb, an electronic comb that kills lice on contact. liceguard.com
- Lice picking. If you go online, you'll find a number of companies where people will remove the lice from your children's hair.

A study found that one in four elementary school kids get lice. ISTOCK

On the web

Qriket

Reasons Mommy Drinks #75: The Diaper Bag. Scan this code or visit metronews.ca/voices to find out what's inside.

Slow cook mouth-watering flavours of delectable paella

ROSE REISMAN
for more, visit
rosereisman.com

I love paella but I find it takes too long to cook, especially if I've just walked in the door and want something on the table in a hurry. The slow cooker is the perfect solution. All you have to do is add the seafood 30 minutes before you're ready to eat.

1. Cube chicken and dust with flour. Lightly coat a large, nonstick skillet with cooking spray and set over medium-high heat. Add the oil. Brown the chicken on all sides, for about 3 minutes or just until cooked. Remove from the pan and set aside.

2. Again lightly coat the pan with cooking spray. Add the sausage and cook over medium-high heat for 5 minutes or until cooked through. Remove from the pan with a slotted spoon, draining as much of the fat as possible. Set aside.

3. Wipe out pan and respray. Cook onion and garlic over medium-high heat 4 minutes or until softened. Stir in peppers and cook 3 minutes. Stir in the rice and cook for 1 minute. Add the chicken, sausage, chicken stock, tomatoes, basil, oregano, bay leaf, saffron (if using), salt and pepper. Bring to a boil.

4. Place everything in slow cooker and cook on high setting 3 hours or on low setting for 5 hours. Add shrimp and mussels during last 30 minutes if slow cooker is on the high setting, or during last 60 minutes if on low. Serve garnished with parsley. ROSE REISMAN'S FAMILY FAVOURITES (WHITECAP BOOKS)

This recipe serves four. RYAN SZULC, FROM REISMAN'S FAMILY FAVOURITES (WHITECAP BOOKS)

Ingredients

- 12 oz skinless boneless chicken breasts
- 3 tbsp all-purpose flour
- 2 tsp vegetable oil
- 6 oz mild Italian sausage, cut into 1/2-inch pieces
- 1 cup chopped onion
- 2 tsp finely chopped garlic
- 1 cup chopped red and green bell pepper
- 1 cup brown rice
- 3 cups chicken stock
- 3 cups chopped plum tomatoes
- 2 tsp dried basil
- 1 tsp dried oregano
- 1 bay leaf
- 1/2 tsp crumbled saffron threads (optional)
- pinch of salt and pepper
- 8 oz raw shrimp, peeled and deveined
- 12 mussels, scrubbed and debearded
- 1/4 cup chopped parsley

Healthy eating

Choose it and lose it

ROSE REISMAN
for more, visit
rosereisman.com

When you find a chip that sounds healthy, check the method with which it's made because that's where a lot of the calories and fat hide.

Terra Chips (50 g) and spinach dip (2 tbsp)

420 calories/ 34 g fat
Root vegetables made into chips sounds healthier than regular potato chips. But deep frying still multiplies calories and fat.

Equivalent

Fifty grams of Terra Chips with two tablespoons of spinach dip is equal in fat to an entire McCain's thin crust whole-wheat pizza with marinated tomato and chicken.

Pop Chips (50 g) and salsa (2 tbsp)

218 calories/ 7 g fat
These chips are much lower in calories and fat. They are popped rather than fried or baked.

Chicken Pasta Salad. When you want to go light

1. In bowl, whisk milk, garlic, honey, mustard, salt, thyme and rosemary. Gradually whisk in lemon juice. Let stand for 10 minutes or until slightly thickened. Whisk in yogurt.

2. In saucepan, cook pasta according to package directions, until al dente; drain. Rinse under cold running water until cool; drain well. Add to dressing in bowl with chicken, grapes, celery, onion, cheese and stir. Season with salt, pepper. Sprinkle with nuts. THE CANADIAN PRESS/ DAIRYGOODNESS.CA

Ingredients

- 250 g (8 oz) fusilli or other short pasta
- 750 ml (3 cups) shredded cooked chicken
- 250 ml (1 cup) each red grapes (halved) and sliced celery
- 50 ml (1/4 cup) thinly sliced red onion
- 250 ml (1 cup) crumbled havarti, colby or Gouda cheese
- Salt and pepper, to taste
- 50 ml (1/4 cup) chopped toasted walnuts or almonds

Dressing

- 250 ml (1 cup) milk
- 1 clove garlic, minced
- 30 ml (2 tbsp) liquid honey
- 15 ml (1 tbsp) Dijon mustard
- 2 ml (1/2 tsp) salt
- 1 ml (1/4 tsp) each dried thyme and rosemary
- 50 ml (1/4 cup) freshly squeezed lemon juice
- 50 ml (1/4 cup) plain yogurt

Pulled Chicken & Hominy Stew: Comfort food 2.0

Hominy is one of those foods you might think you've never tried, yet almost certainly have. Or at least a close relative of it.

Hominy is the name given to whole corn kernels, usually white, that have been cooked in a lye or lime solution to remove their thick hulls. The result is a tender, somewhat bulbous kernel with a chewy texture and a clean, corn flavour.

In Latin America, they're used most often in soups and stews, such as pozole, a highly seasoned stew of hominy, pork and chili peppers. The Southern staple known as grits follows a similar path. In this case, the hominy is dried after processing, then coarsely ground. The resulting meal then is cooked with water to a porridge-like consistency.

Here, it's used to make Pulled Chicken and Hominy Stew.

1. In saucepan over medium-high heat, warm oil. Add onion, garlic, cumin, cinnamon, cayenne, paprika and mustard powder.

2. Sauté until the onions are tender, about 4 minutes. Add the steak tips and sear, turning to brown, about 3 minutes.

3. Add the broth, wine, tomato paste, juice of 1 lime, and Worcestershire sauce. Bring to a simmer. Add the chicken, then cook for 15 to 20 minutes.

4. Use slotted spoon to transfer the chicken to a cutting board. Shred it and then return to pot.

5. Add the bell peppers, hominy and brown sugar. Simmer, uncovered, for 5 to 6 minutes. Season with salt and pepper, then stir in the juice of the remaining lime and the cilantro. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

This recipe serves eight. MATTHEW MEAD/ THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Ingredients

- 1 tbsp olive oil
- 1 large yellow onion, diced
- 4 cloves garlic, minced
- 1 tsp each ground cumin, cinnamon, cayenne pepper, smoked paprika, mustard powder
- 1 lb steak tips, cut into 1-inch chunks
- 1 quart beef broth
- 2 cups red wine
- 6-oz can tomato paste
- Juice of 2 limes, divided
- 1 tbsp Worcestershire sauce
- 2 lbs boneless, skinless chicken breasts, cut into large chunks
- 2 red bell peppers, cored and chopped
- 29-oz can hominy, drained
- 1/4 cup packed brown sugar
- Salt and ground black pepper
- 1/4 cup chopped cilantro

Tailoring the way we learn to love our land

Guru of green.
Author suggests mixing the emotional with the ecological when teaching environmental education

BRUCE WALSH
Metro World News in Philadelphia

You're never too young to start making positive changes for our planet. ISTOCK

Best-selling author and self-help guru Daniel Goleman is known worldwide for stressing the importance of emotional intelligence in developing one's full potential.

While the term had been around for decades, Goleman's 1995 book, Emotional Intelligence: Why It Can Matter More Than IQ, popularized the concept. Broadly speaking, emotional intelligence is seen by many as an ability to gauge one's own emotions as well as the emotions of others, and to build relationships around this understanding.

Now Goleman is incorporating his environmental passions into his educational philosophy. His latest, Ecoliterate: How Educators Are Incorporating Emotional, Social and Ecological Intelligence, was written in partnership with the Berkeley-based Center for Ecoliteracy.

"In teaching people about ecological issues — whether it's K to 12 or in the university — there's something that happens on an emotional level, and that's fear and anxiety," says co-author Lisa Bennett. "We've pushed nature's systems to the brink in a lot of ways right now, so if you bring emotional intelligence to teaching about ecological issues, you can be a lot more effective."

In a class that cares

We've pushed nature's systems to the brink in a lot of ways right now, so if you bring emotional intelligence to teaching about ecological issues, you can be a lot more effective.
Ecoliterate co-author Lisa Bennett

Ecoliterate investigates eight cutting-edge environmental education programs, from Kentucky to Alaska, looking for effective blueprints for this new curriculum. While the book is primarily directed at Kindergarten to Grade 12 teachers, the authors suggest that these programs could be easily adapted for the college level.

"In Dan Goleman's seminal books, he showed how critical emotional and social intelligence is to allowing people to be effective," says Bennett. "We discovered in Ecoliterate that, actually, each form of intelligence is an extension of the other, and eco-intelligence is related to both: It boosts academic achievement, because it's tied to emotional learning, and it develops strength, hope and resilience in students."

Five steps

The Center for Ecoliteracy has outlined five vital practices for teaching environmental studies to Kindergartens to Grade 12 students.

- Developing empathy for all forms of life
- Embracing sustainability as a community practice
- Making the invisible visible
- Anticipating unintended consequences
- Understanding how nature sustains life

EXCITING OPPORTUNITY
BUILDING OPERATOR/MAINTENANCE POSITIONS

Colliers McClocklin, a dynamic and growing full service property management and commercial brokerage firm, has immediate opportunities on our Building Operator and Maintenance Teams.

The position requires:
- A highly motivated person with a strong work ethic;
- Strong communication and interpersonal skills;
- Knowledge of building maintenance and operations;
- 4th Class Power Engineering Certificate and/or Fireman's Certificate.

Remuneration will commensurate with experience and ability.

Please forward your resume to:
Kent Nicholson

Colliers INTERNATIONAL

Colliers McClockin Real Estate Corp.
728 Spadina Crescent East
Saskatoon, SK S7K 4H7
kent.nicholson@colliers.com

The In-Credibility Factor

Ray Cao PROVIDED

Name: Ray Cao
City: Toronto
Age: 25
Occupation: Loose Button Luxe Box Founder

THE IN-CREDIBILITY FACTOR
Teresa Kruze
life@metronews.ca

Started an online apparel company but found the market was saturated. Switched to Luxe Box where consumers can sample new beauty products. Thirteen months later, Cao now employs 15 people and his membership base is on track to reach 100,000 people.

I knew I was on my way when... We got one order, then four, then 15. Soon my cellphone was ringing with non-stop orders. Since then we've grown extremely fast. It all started with a simple idea we wanted to test and it grew from there.

Just a few weeks ago we launched into the U.S. We are looking to build a platform where all types of products can be sampled and ordered on a subscription basis. We have some crazy growth plans in play. This is just the beginning.

Action Plan

• You've got to surround yourself with the right people. Ideas change but as long as you have a strong core team they will help you get through the difficult times.

• Fail fast, fail cheap and fail often. You won't get it the first time. Most overnight successes are built over 10 years and people have to realize they don't happen right away

• A lot of first-time entrepreneurs set themselves up for failure and then they give up. Sometimes the extra push makes all the difference. A couple of days could make an incredible difference so never give up.

Career Bear

I've got details on flexible careers, jobs with the fastest salary growth, keys to loving your job and the schools and tools in your area to help you become what YOU want to be.

Don't just dream about your new career...
Get there with CareerBear.com

Go to CareerBear.com for your chance to WIN
1 of 4 weekly prizes of an Apple Macbook Pro with Retina display!

"Apple" and "MacBook Pro" are trademarks of Apple Inc.
Apple Inc. is not a sponsor of, nor a participant in this promotion.
To register and for full contest details, visit clubmetro.com

The kids are all right: our country's youth defying odds

Education nation. Canada's young people largely working or learning, international OECD report says

Economic turmoil may have been pushing young people out of the workforce and sidelining them from their educational goals, but a report from the Organization for Economic Co-Operation and Development suggests Canada's youth are faring better than most.

The organization's Education at a Glance report found that 14 per cent of Canadians between 15 and 29 years of age were neither employed nor in education training, a measure commonly referred to as NEET.

Canada's numbers were below the international average of 16 per cent, a figure the organization said had been impacted by global economic turbulence.

The report was based on figures available from 2008 to 2010 — and the OECD said those trends are likely still rising due to more recent economic turmoil.

Canada's NEET youth were almost equally divided along gender lines, with boys only slightly more likely to find themselves outside either the education system or the labour force.

The NEET measurement from the OECD echoes findings from Statistics Canada released last May.

The country's national data collection agency found only 13 per cent of the 6.8 Canadian youth qualified as NEET, continuing a trend that has stayed more or less static for the past two decades.

The OECD had previously stated Canada had the second-lowest NEET rating among G7 countries. Tuesday's report examined a variety of educational metrics for 42 countries worldwide.

Canada's NEET rate was situated in the lower half of the report's spectrum, but was higher than the figures for Netherlands and Luxembourg, who boasted NEET rates of seven per cent.

Turkey had the highest NEET rate at 37 per cent, a number that reflected the fact that more than half the country's women were excluded from both education and work.

The OECD report repeatedly stressed the need for governments to step up investment in education if they hope to limit inequality and improve employment prospects for their citizens.

"Countries need an increasingly educated and skilled workforce to succeed in today's knowledge economy," OECD Secretary-General Angel Gurria said in a statement.

"Investing from an early age is crucial to lay the foundations of later success. High quality education and skills have to be among the number one priorities for governments, for economies and for societies. Supporting the poorest and ensuring equal access is another important pillar in an inclusive education policy."

The OECD report flagged the average NEET rate as a particularly telling measure of a country's future prospects.

The typical 15-year-old looking ahead 15 more years could expect seven years of education, 5.5 years of work, one year unemployed and 1.3 years out of the workforce entirely.

Although some in that last category were raising families, the OECD said, the high unemployment figures among young adults, especially in countries with low birthrates such as Spain and Italy, indicate a grave problem.

According to the report, the prospect of unemployment among the young is less dismal for those with more education. It found that higher education reduced joblessness by eight percentage points among 20 to 24-year-olds and 6.7 percentage points among 25 to 29-year-olds.

The report found one major reversal: Young women, for the first time, are more likely than young men to finish high school, are outpacing men in entering university-level education, and are catching up even in vocational schools.

The gap was most pronounced in Iceland and Portugal, where women's high school graduation rates were higher than men's by 20 percentage points or more.

THE CANADIAN PRESS

Funding our future

"Investing from an early age is crucial to lay the foundations of later success. High quality education and skills have to be among the number one priorities for governments, for economies and for societies."

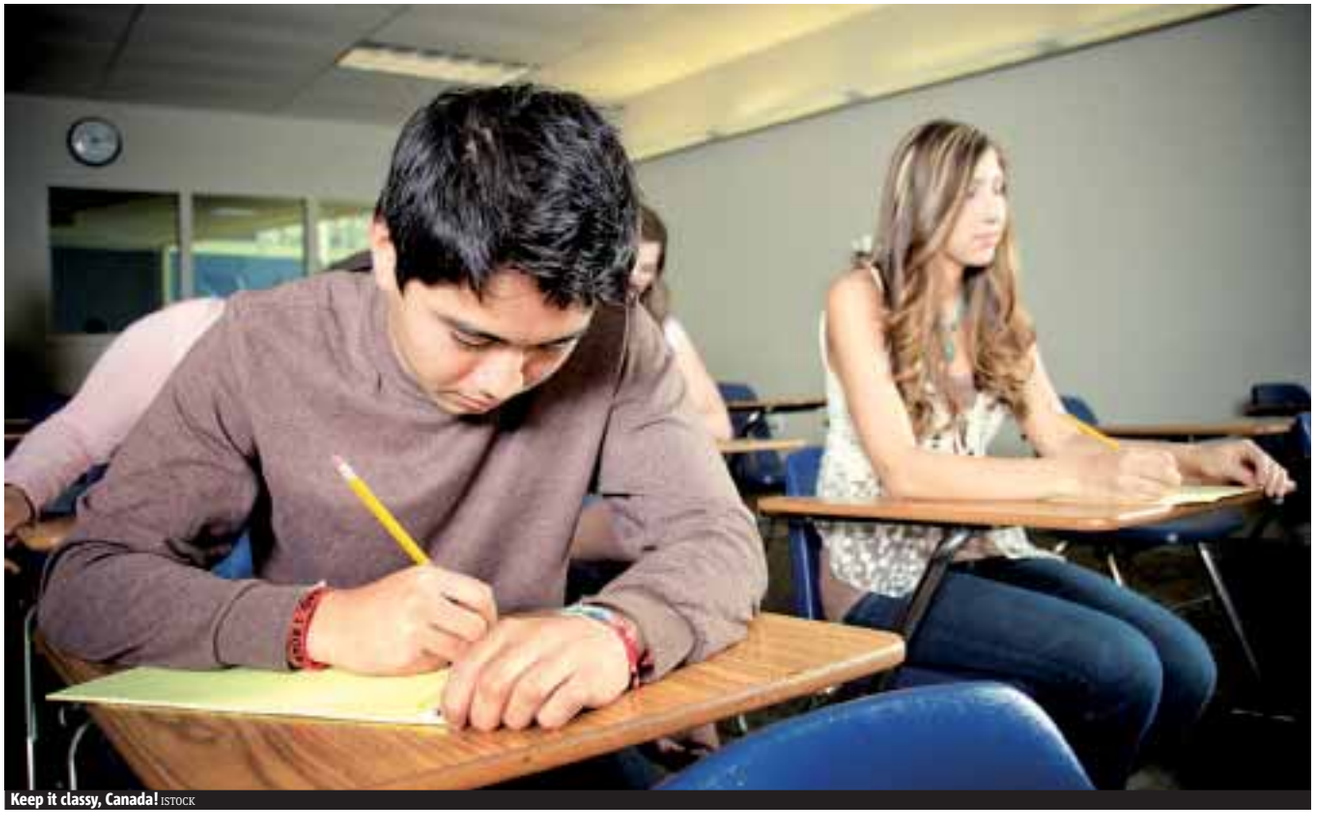
Angel Gurria, OECD Secretary-General

Girls on the grind

Teenage girls in OECD countries were found to be more ambitious than boys when it came to their future careers.

- They were significantly more likely to expect jobs in high-status, professional careers.
- But relatively few envisioned themselves in engineering or computing, both fields that remain dominated by men.

BE 3 STEPS AHEAD!
Receive all of the most commonly required Safety Tickets needed to work in today's Oilfield Industry with our 5 day Oilfield Safety Training Course!
IM Safety Services - helping you realize your FULL POTENTIAL & Jump Start Your Career!
To view Course Calendar and additional programs:
www.imsafetyservices.com
#111 - 1724 Quebec Avenue
Phone 374-6401
IM Safety Services



Keep it classy, Canada! ISTOCK

SPORTS 4

Penguins star Evgeni Malkin looks on during a IIHF World Championship game between Russia and Sweden in May in Stockholm. Malkin has signed up with KHL team Magnitogorsk. MARTIN ROSE/BONGARTS/GETTY IMAGES FILE

Jaromir Jagr of the Philadelphia Flyers skates against the New York Islanders in March in Uniondale, N.Y. Jagr has agreed to return to the Czech Republic to play for the team Kladno. BRUCE BENNETT/GETTY IMAGES FILE

Some locked-out NHL players Europe-bound

NHL. Reigning MVP Evgeni Malkin among list of those going abroad

With the doors locked shut at NHL arenas, the best hockey players on the planet are turning their focus to a new world of opportunities.

Every player on a NHL roster as of Sunday morning became free to seek other work for the duration of the lockout, and many started doing so immediately. Reigning NHL MVP Evgeni Malkin (Magnitogorsk) and Pavel Datsyuk (Ak Bars) were among those who signed deals to play in the Russian-based KHL while Jaromir Jagr (Kladno) is going to the Czech Republic and Jussi Jokinen (Karpat) inked a deal in Finland.

Teams from Switzerland, Sweden and Germany will come calling as well. Depending on the length of the lockout, it could result in a massive displacement of players throughout the hockey world.

The NHL locked out its players at midnight on Saturday and released a message to fans on its website the following day, saying "this is a time of year for all attention to be focused on the ice, not on a meeting room." Meanwhile, the NHLPA sent out a video montage with players talking about what they'll miss about not playing and ended with the statement: "This is an NHL owners lockout."

Nearly 400 NHL players suited up in 19 different European leagues during the lockout that cancelled the entire 2004-05 season. It was a migration that came with a fair bit of controversy as the NHLers pushed others out of jobs.

The debate has restarted again, but it's unlikely to deter many of the 750 locked-out NHLPA members.

"I'm a hockey player and it's a competitive business," said Pittsburgh Penguins captain Sidney Crosby. "Would I look forward to that opportunity of taking someone's job? No. But at the end of the day I'm a hockey player."

Now in its fifth season, the KHL believes it is in a position to capitalize on the availability of so many elite players. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Quoted

"The scary part is I think you'll see some of the best players in the game (going over). Let's hope they come back when they're going to get paid the dollars they're going to get paid in some of these leagues to go play now." Calgary Flames forward Mike Cammalleri

For the latest news on the NHL lockout, visit metronews.ca/tag/nhl

CIS – Canada West

Huskies 2-1 after win on weekend

The University of Saskatchewan Huskies improved their record to 2–1 after a 39-34 win against the University of British Columbia Thunderbirds over the weekend.

The Huskies managed to maintain the lead for the majority of the first half during Saturday's game, but in the third quarter, UBC came back leading 24-22 by the end of the third, before going up 31-22 early in the fourth.

In the end it was two touchdowns in the fourth quarter that sealed the deal for the Huskies as the team managed to fight their way back after quarterback Drew Burko completed a 48-yard pass to wide-receiver Kit Hillis and a 15-yard pass to wide-receiver Mitch Stevens.

In total, Burko managed to throw 328 yards against the UBC Thunderbirds, who are still after their first win of the season.

The U of S Huskies next game is against their provincial rivals, the University of Regina Rams, Sept. 21 at 7 p.m. at Griffiths Stadium. METRO

Junior football

Hilltops come out on top vs. Rifles

The Saskatoon Hilltops improved their record to 4-1 on Sunday, defeating the Winnipeg Rifles 43-9 at Gordie Howe Bowl.

Next Saturday, the Hilltops head to Regina to take on the Regina Thunder at Mosaic Stadium. METRO

Fans hold out hope for a speedy resolution

A padlock is seen on a parking lot gate outside Rogers Arena, the home of the Vancouver Canucks on Sunday in Vancouver. DARRYL DYCK/THE CANADIAN PRESS

Hockey fans were holding onto the possibility over the weekend the NHL lockout could come to a quick end, despite little sign of progress in the negotiations.

"It's a shame, because in the end it's the fans that are the biggest losers," said 54-year-old Jean-Pierre Lacombe outside the Hockey Hall of Fame in Toronto.

William Gainsbury, who works at the parking lot across from the Montreal Canadiens' arena, the Bell Centre, remains optimistic both sides will step up and work out an agreement before games get cancelled.

Impact

An extended lockout would hurt the bottom line in businesses across the country, from hotels to merchandise stores.

"Hopefully the players and the owners, with all their lawyers and personnel, can work it out," he said.held serve in each game of the first set.

Gainsbury said his job is safe, but other staff will see their shifts trimmed back if the lot ends up empty during the normally bustling hockey season.

The prospect of having the regular season start as scheduled on Oct. 11 is less and less likely with each passing day.

The first exhibition games could be scrapped next week.

But regardless of how the dispute plays out, he said his passion for the game will stick.

"I'm becoming less and less of a fan of the NHL concerning the business side of it," he said.

"But I'll always watch it no matter what. They could lock out for 10 years and as soon as they start playing again, I'm going to watch the first game." THE CANADIAN PRESS

Mobile sports

Qriket

The NFL removed a replacement official from the New Orleans-Carolina game on Sunday because it discovered he's a Saints fan. Brian Stropolo is from New Orleans and posted several photos of himself in Saints gear on his Facebook page. Scan the code for the story.

Record books. Vizquel moves to 42nd on all-time hit list in Jays win

As Omar Vizquel winds down his career, it seems like he reaches a milestone with each hit.

It also helps when they win games as well.

The 45-year-old hit a two-out single in the seventh inning against left-hander Jon Lester to break a 0-0 tie and the Toronto Blue Jays went on to beat the Boston Red Sox 5-0 on Sunday.

The single was Vizquel's second hit of the game and tied him with Jesse Burkett for 42nd on the all-time list with 2,872.

The single was followed by a two-run homer by Adeiny Hechavarria, his second as a major-leaguer. The Blue Jays added two in the eighth in front of 21,698 fans at Rogers Centre.

Vizquel's next hit ties him with Babe Ruth and it could come at Yankee Stadium where the Blue Jays open a three-game series against New York on Tuesday.

Blue Jays manager John Farrell said Vizquel will get the chance.

"I'd be crazy not to," he said. "Given today's performance with two more hits. For him to tie if possible in New York will be very fitting."

"Not even in my wildest dreams was I going to think that you can bring the name of Babe Ruth next to mine and compare it with hits and other things there have been in my career," Vizquel said.

"When I started the season I wasn't really thinking about numbers. I was just trying to go out there and finish my career strong." THE CANADIAN PRESS

Blue Jays shortstop Adeiny Hechavarria, right, celebrates his two-run home run with teammate Omar Vizquel. NATHAN DENETTE/THE CANADIAN PRESS

NASCAR. Keselowski tops point standings after Sprint Cup win

Brad Keselowski began the season with a bit of goofiness, posting on Twitter during a red-flag stoppage at the Daytona 500.

He's ending the year with a far more serious pursuit — for his first Sprint Cup championship.

Keselowski is off to a fine start after an impressive victory over Jimmie Johnson on Sunday at Chicagoland Speedway. In the opening race of the Chase for the Sprint Cup, the 28-year-old Keselowski outlasted Johnson for the first Chase win of his career. Keselowski also took over the lead in the points standings for the first time. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Quoted

"To be racing him, whether it was for the lead or for 10th, is an accomplishment."

Brad Keselowski on his defeat of NASCAR star Jimmie Johnson.

Women's British Open

Shin wins Open by record 9 strokes

Jiyai Shin avoided mistakes in miserable weather conditions Sunday to cruise to a record nine-stroke victory in the Women's British Open.

In the 36-hole finish Sunday in the wind-delayed tournament, Shin took a three-shot lead into the final round after shooting a 1-under 71 in the morning. She stayed calm while strong wind and heavy showers sent scores soaring at Royal Liverpool in the afternoon, closing with a 73 to finish at 9-under 279.

The 24-year-old South Korean player won the major championship for the second time in five years and also won for the second time in seven days on the LPGA Tour. Last Monday morning in Virginia, she finished off Paula Creamer on the ninth hole of a playoff in the Kingsmill Championship. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Milos Raonic returns a volley against South Africa's Izak van der Merwe in Davis Cup action on Sunday in Montreal. PETER MCCABE/THE CANADIAN PRESS

Raonic win leads Canada to Davis Cup World Group

Tennis singles. 21-year-old relies on return game and serve in convincing defeat of South African competitor

Quoted

"The other day I waited for him to lose to me. Today, I played."

21-year-old Thornhill native Milos Raonic on his defeat of South Africa's Izak van der Merwe, and rebounding from a poor opening match two days earlier

Milos Raonic wanted a dominating win Sunday after what he felt was a lax effort two days earlier.

He did exactly that, and in dominant fashion, beating Izak van der Merwe 6-2, 6-2, 6-4 to clinch the Davis Cup best-of-five series over South Africa.

The victory secures Canada's spot in the elite World Group, while South Africa is relegated to zone play.

Raonic was happy he won his opening singles match but wasn't pleased with his performance. With the World Group spot in sight, the 21-year-old from Thornhill, Ont., took to the court hungry to finish on top.

"I came out with more of an accomplished goal, other than winning. I came out, did a lot of things well, played on my terms and did what I wanted to do," he said. "The other day I waited for him to lose to me. Today, I played."

Vasek Pospisil won the other singles matches in straight sets Friday, but the Canadians missed a chance to clinch Saturday at Uniprix Stadium when Toronto's Daniel Nestor and Vancouver's Pospisil lost to van der Merwe and Raven Klaasen in doubles.

Raonic got off to a quick start Sunday against van der Merwe, breaking the South African in the opening game. His renowned serve was once again his strength, as the 21-year-old held serve in each game of the first set.

"It doesn't inspire confidence when you lose your serve in the very first game. He hit a great shot to break me," said van der Merwe. "He really stepped up his game today, played well and deserved to win."

Raonic's return game helped him stake out a 3-0 lead in the second set, breaking van der Merwe twice in the middle frame. That, combined with ability to hold serve made the World No. 15 tough to take down.

It marked a second straight year that Canada won its Davis Cup tie to advance to the World Group, going overseas and defeating Israel. A loss to France put the team back a step in February, leading to the rubber matches against South Africa. But with a good showing under its belt in Montreal, Canadian captain Martin Laurendeau is confident in his team's future.

"Doing it two years in a row shows we belong at this level. We started off great and finished great," he said. "(Winning 4-1) sends a message to other teams that we have a lot of depth.

"When all of our players are healthy and competitive, I think we can take on a lot of teams in the World Group level." THE CANADIAN PRESS

Andrew Luck of the Indianapolis Colts runs off of the field following a 23-20 win over the Minnesota Vikings in Indianapolis on Sunday. ANDY LYONS/GETTY IMAGES

Luck's late charge leads to his first win

NFL. Vinatieri caps final drive with game-winning 53-yard FG

Sunday's game

23	20
Colts	Vikings

Clutch kicking

8

Adam Vinatieri's game-winning 53-yard field goal split the uprights with just eight seconds remaining in the game. The kicker was 3-for-3 on the day.

Andrew Luck sure didn't play like a rookie Sunday afternoon.

He looked like a new, younger version of Peyton Manning.

The Colts rookie threw two touchdown passes, took advantage of several key Minnesota penalties and marched Indianapolis 45 yards in 23 seconds to set up Adam Vinatieri for a 53-yard field goal with eight seconds left, which gave Indianapolis a 23-20 victory over Minnesota in Luck's home debut.

"It's just amazing that the guy's able to go out there and do the things he does as a rookie," Colts coach Chuck Pagano said. "He certainly had to put the ball on them, and he did."

Many of those wearing No. 18 jerseys in Sunday's crowd had probably forgotten it took Manning a little longer to win his first game. He started 0-4, including two home losses, before finally beating Ryan Leaf and the San Diego Chargers on Oct. 4, 1998.

Luck's older teammates couldn't be happier to get this early win, either, especially after last season's 0-13 start spurred speculation about going winless for the regular season.

The No. 1 draft pick made sure it didn't happen again. Indy's new quarterback finished 20 of 31 for 224 yards on a solid, not spectacular day.

He played the entire second half without three starters on the offensive line, yet managed to move the Colts into field-goal position twice. Luck actually did his most impressive work eluding pass rushers and throwing on the run.

Time after time, he managed to escape trouble including twice on Indy's winning drive, to complete passes. And when the Vikings made mistakes, he made them pay.

He got a field goal out of a roughing-the-kicker penalty and a personal foul call, penalties that kept one second-half drive alive, and when the Vikings blew a coverage just before halftime, Luck hooked up with Reggie Wayne for a 30-yard score.

The Vikings (1-1) were frustrated all afternoon.

"We were rushing him. He moved around a lot. It (stinks), missing sacks," Jared Allen said. "He did a good job. If the guy is not as mobile, we probably have six sacks."

Sure, Luck made a few miscues — such as taking the 17-yard sack on third-and-5 with three minutes to play. Or spiking the ball when the clock was already stopped just before Vinatieri came onto the field for his field goal.

But, like Manning, Luck didn't let the miscues bother him.

"I guess some people were under the impression that the clock was going to run, so I guess we looked a little foolish killing the clock when it was already stopped," Luck said, laughing as he explained why he spiked the ball with 12 seconds to play. "Oh well."

The Colts (1-1) have won three straight home games dating to last season and improved to 10-0 in home games against the Vikings.

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Quoted

"The kid's got poise. He's got some winning in the blood." Colts wide receiver Reggie Wayne on rookie quarterback Andrew Luck

Wise Dan blows away the field in record-setting win

Wise Dan dominated the Grade 1 $1-million Ricoh Woodbine Mile on Sunday.

The five-year-old Kentucky-bred gelding went off as the prohibitive 1/2 favourite and then showed why. He sat third through the opening half-mile, then surged into the lead before blowing away the field with an emphatic 3 1/4-length victory on a firm E.P Taylor turf course at Woodbine Racetrack.

Wise Dan posted a winning time of 1:34.07 to earn the $600,000 winner's share with the second-largest margin of victory in race history. Only Lerroidesanimaux's 7 3/4-length victory in '05 was more dominant.

Wise Dan won the Ricoh Woodbine Mile on Sunday. MICHAEL BURNS/THE CANADIAN PRESS

"I was a little worried being that close to the lead," said winning trainer Charles Lopresti. "And when he made the lead I was thinking, 'It's a really long stretch,' but he kept running."

Wise Dan became only the fourth favourite to win the Woodbine Mile in its 16 editions, joining Soaring Free (2004), Leroidesanimaux (2005) and Shakespeare in 2007. And it was a record-setting performance as Lopresti became the first trainer to win consecutive races while jockey John Velazquez won this event for a record third time.

THE CANADIAN PRESS

Premier League

Defoe dazzles with pair of goals

Jermain Defoe capped a superb individual display with two well-taken goals in Tottenham's 3-1 win over Reading on Sunday, earning manager Andre Villas-Boas his first Premier League victory at the club.

The England striker was again preferred up front to Emmanuel Adebayor and justified the faith shown in him by Villas-Boas by opening the scoring in the 18th minute and completing a convincing win with a fine solo effort in the 74th. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

NFL. Saints defence is exploited for second week

As long as Drew Brees stays healthy, the New Orleans Saints' offence is going to be just fine.

The defence? Now that's a concern.

The Saints got pushed around for the second straight week, allowing 463 total yards in a 35-27 loss to the Carolina Panthers on Sunday. New Orleans fell to 0-2 for the first time since 2007 and finds itself alone in the NFC South cellar.

They've allowed 922 yards and 75 points in two games against young quarterbacks Cam Newton and Robert Griffin III.

"We're just not playing as good as we want to yet," Saints cornerback Malcolm Jenkins said. "We had high expectations and we've worked hard and prepared hard. We've got to jell and continue to do the things we need to do to get better. We just have to continue to chip away at this thing."

The Saints will welcome an opportunity to face a team that doesn't run the zone-read option quite as much next Sunday. They face another 0-2 team when they meet Matt Cassel and the Kansas City Chiefs.

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Horoscopes

♈ Aries
March 21 - April 20
There may be times when you find it hard to smile but you can find a reason if you look hard enough. What is it that makes your life worth living? What is it that inspires you the most? So do it.

♉ Taurus
April 21 - May 21
Some people may be a bit of a pain but if you stay calm and do what is expected of you then by the end of the week your name will be up in lights. Help others now and they will help you later.

♊ Gemini
May 22 - June 21
Stay on good terms with colleagues over the next few days, because if you fall out now you may regret it later. By the time the Sun moves in your favour again on the 22nd you'll all be friends again.

♋ Cancer
June 22 - July 23
No matter how difficult it might be to find a solution to a complex personal problem, if you give it some thought today you will come up with something that does the trick. You're pretty good at problem solving.

♌ Leo
July 24 - Aug. 23
Today's Mercury-Neptune link will force you to recognize certain truths that have always been there but which you have contrived to ignore. Start by realizing that a so-called friend is nothing of the sort.

♍ Virgo
Aug. 24 - Sept. 23
Don't waste time thinking about what might have been. What's done is done and cannot be undone and the sooner you accept that, the sooner you can move on. There is still so much you can accomplish.

♎ Libra
Sept. 24 - Oct. 23
Your past efforts will be fully rewarded, though maybe not immediately. The Sun's move into your sign on the 22nd marks the start of a new solar year — that's when your luck is most likely to change.

♏ Scorpio
Oct. 24 - Nov. 22
You need to push your emotions to one side and do what has to be done. Certain people may not thank you for it now but they will realize later on that you were doing it entirely for their own good.

♐ Sagittarius
Nov. 23 - Dec. 21
Because you are such a can-do person you are always helping other people, but over the next few days your time will be limited, so only help those who truly deserve it. That's probably not very many.

♑ Capricorn
Dec. 22 - Jan. 20
You will be called upon to make sacrifices over the next seven days, but don't think of it as a chore. Make an effort for other people now and they will make an even bigger effort for you later on.

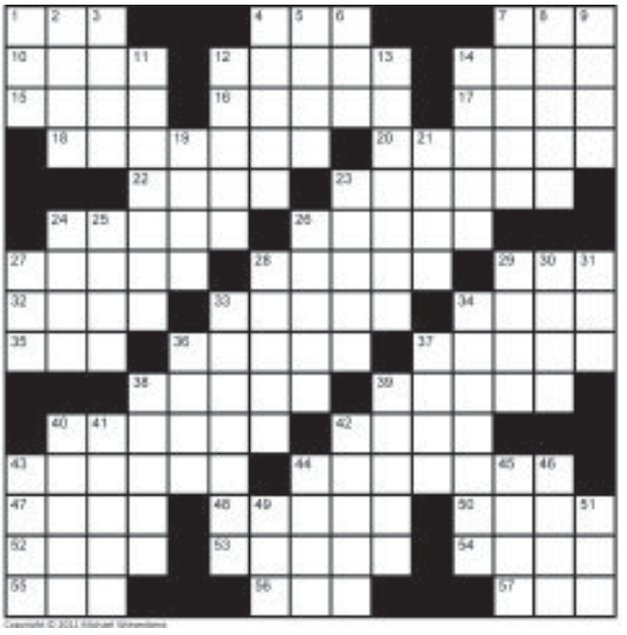
♒ Aquarius
Jan. 21 - Feb. 19
You are both hard-working and socially responsible and that's a combination that is hard to beat. It's also a combination that will get you noticed over the next few days, and maybe promoted. You deserve it.

♓ Pisces
Feb. 20 - March 20
If you find it hard to adopt a positive attitude towards negative people today then maybe you should remove yourself from their presence for a while. If they think they might lose you their attitude will change.

SALLY BROMPTON

Crossword: Some of This and Some of That

BY MICHAEL WIESENBERG



Across
1. PC maker
4. Attractive leg, slangily
7. Mu ___ pork: Chinese dish
10. Alone, as at a dance
12. Blocks for young builders
14. Ark units
15. Kitty's contented croon
16. Some Yukon natives
17. Longings
18. Symbol of regal power
20. National Park north of Banff National Park
22. "... golden days of ___": past time
23. Automatons
24. " ___ bleu!": mild French oath
26. Montréal singer-poet Leonard most known for "Suzanne"
27. Louisianian, a word that's from "Acadian"
28. ___ Mrs. Smith: 2005 Angelina Jolie, Brad Pitt film (2 wds.)
29. "I can't ___ thing with my hair!" (2 wds.)
32. Take ___: sleep briefly (2 wds.)
33. Years and years
34. Corn holders
35. Tyrannosaurus ___
36. Caramel-topped desserts
37. Seeps
38. BC-born pop singer Michael
39. Common trashcan site
40. Calgary team
42. Group of three
43. The longest river in BC, it has its mouth at Vancouver
44. Knight suits
47. Fail at poker
48. Quintessential Canadian cap
50. Some TVs
52. "Beware the ___ of March": Julius Caesar
53. As stubborn as ___ (2 wds.)
54. Censor's target
55. Craggy hilltop
56. Earnings
57. Tissue box word

Down
1. AOL or MSN
2. A/C capacity measures
3. Antony who eulogized Caesar
4. Mystery or romance
5. Chills and fever fit
6. Me: Fr.
7. Cleaned out, as a chimney
8. Sharpens, as a knife
9. Soviet Union
11. CFL championship game (2 wds.)
12. Gasoline unit
13. NL capital (2 wds.)
14. Victoria-born writer Ian of "Four Strong Winds"
19. Censor's target
21. Laid up
23. Brownish horses
24. Of sound mind
25. "Cleans like a white tornado" product
26. Witch
27. Windsor, Ontario product
28. Banquets
29. Catch 40 winks
30. Heed
31. Donkey
33. 20-Across's province
34. Palette contents
36. Be extremely furious
37. Dish with some of this and some of that
38. Bottoms
39. Fighting force: Fr.
40. The Lord of the Rings
41. CD beam
42. "Yours ___": letter closing
43. Dart here and there
44. Shade of blue
45. Canadian force
46. David's biblical predecessor
49. Ref
51. Pig pen

Friday's Crossword

What's online

See today's answers at metronews.ca/answers.

Sudoku

How to play
Fill in the grid, so that every row, every column and every 3x3 box contains the digits 1-9. There is no math involved. You solve the puzzle with reasoning and logic.

			7			4
8	3						5
		2			1		3
	1	9	6	5			7
5								4
	7			1	2	5	9
	4		9			8
	6						2	9
		3			8

Friday's Sudoku

Sharability

easy hard

STEADY PART-TIME SCHOOL BUS DRIVERS NEEDED

We provide free training. No evenings or weekends. School holidays off.
Ideal for active retirees, stay-at-home parents or the self-employed.

CALL: 306-343-5032

You can also pre-apply online at www.firststudentcanada.com

Find us on Facebook
www.facebook.com/firststudentcanadajobs

We are an equal opportunity employer.

First Student Canada